OFFICER SAILS FOR EUROPE IN HUNT FOR BABY

Schwarzkopf's Aide Left Week Ago but Details Kept Secret

NEW ANGLE REPORTED Burrage Reveals New Development but Is Silent on Its Nature

Hopewell, N. J.—(AP)—State police announced today that Major Schoeffel, assistant to Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, sailed for Europe a week ago in connection with the search for the kidnapped Lindbergh baby.

Col. Schwarzkopf, who made the announcement, refused to give the name of the boat on which Schoeffel sailed, or to designate the port to which he is headed. He promised to give "more details" in his next regular bulletin late this afternoon.

BURRAGE'S STATEMENT Norfolk, Va.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, said today that there had been a new development since yesterday in the negotiations for the return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby.

The admiral, spokesman for three Norfolk men acting as intermediaries for the child's return, declined to indicate the nature of the development, saying its publication "would hinder negotiations."

This statement was made at the morning press conference in reply to a question by one of the reporters.

Mrs. John Hughes Curtis was away from the city today but Admiral Burrage quoted Mr. Curtis, one of the three intermediaries, as saying his wife's absence was in connection with her personal affairs.

Mrs. Curtis left Tuesday evening, he said.

Mr. Curtis, when interviewed prior to the conference today, refused to say if his wife's trip was concerned with the negotiations. He declined also to say where she had gone and when he expected her return.

He added, however, that Mrs. Curtis had frequently been annoyed with telephoning the question because of its technical nature.

Asked if there was evidence of wire-tapping or leaks in any other way on telephone conversations from Norfolk in connection with the Lindbergh case, Admiral Burrage said, "wire tapping is a technical term; leaks, yes."

At the press conference last night the admiral had asked to be excused from answering the question because of its technical nature.

The spokesman quoted Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, one of the intermediaries, as denying that several days ago he had expected the return of the baby to its father by the end of this week.

Admiral Burrage answered "no," to a question whether a naval plane was being held in readiness for the departure of one or more of the negotiators at a moment's notice.

POST WATCH AT HOUSE Philadelphia—(AP)—Private detectives maintained a watch over a house here early today in the hope they might find some clue in the Lindbergh kidnapping case.

The location of the house was not revealed. The information on which the detectives were working was received at the Central Detective Bureau, Brooklyn, N. Y., on March 13 when two men called on Morton Bernstein, the manager of the concern, and told him to watch the house.

They said a blue sedan would pull up in front of the place and that a man and a woman would get out. "If you crash the door you may find the Lindbergh baby," the informants said and walked out of the office. They were trailed and the information obtained in this way made the detectives believe their "tip" might be of some value.

Bernstein and another detective called at the Lindbergh home yesterday and had a conference with representatives of Col. Lindbergh. Then they came to Philadelphia and although they had said they might ask the aid of the city police, no such request was made.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR IS NAMED AT MINNESOTA

Minneapolis—(AP)—Appointment of Frank McCormick as athletic director at the University of Minnesota, succeeding H. O. Crysler, was announced today by President Lotus D. Coffman. McCormick has been varsity baseball coach and a member of the football staff at Minnesota.

CHINESE ENVOY ON WAY TO INTERVIEW STIMSON

San Francisco—(AP)—Dr. Frank M. Lee, Chinese national government envoy to the United States, has arrived here on his way to Washington with a confidential message for Secretary of State Stimson. Dr. Lee declined to discuss the nature of the message.

Six Held As Suspects In Bank Holdups

Ill at Capital

Washington—(AP)—Representative John C. Schafer (R., Wis.) today became ill in the Republican cloakroom of the house, and the capital physician, Dr. George W. Calver, was hastily summoned. After an examination, Dr. Calver said Schafer "merely ate something that upset him."

SPLIT ON AID IN MICHIGAN

No Emergency Issues Settled as House Ends First Week of Session

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—The legislature adjourned today with no emergency relief issues settled and with a rift in the house over the administration's economy program closing the first week of the special session.

Discord suddenly appeared in a previously tranquil house Friday when a faction led by Representative George C. Watson of Capac, and Vernon J. Brown of Mason, revolted against the blanket 15 per cent reductions recommended by the administration in its $5,800,000 economy program.

Angered by the break in the membership, Rep. Gus T. Hartman of Houghton, administration whip in the house, asked that the budget bill paring state salaries 15 per cent be returned to the ways and means committee, which he headed. There he will permit the opposition, he said, "to do their squawking before the committee."

Brown openly threatened a floor fight unless the bill contained revisions with heavier reduction penalties in the upper salary brackets.

Another uprising against the administration program came when Rep. Edward B. Kirkwood of Grand Rapids, reported the attorney general's office had refused to draft a bill for him to divert highway funds for the elimination of the state property tax.

Kirkwood said the refusal was based on the contention that the proposal was beyond the scope of the special session program as outlined by Gov. Brucker.

Cleveland Sorenson of Manistee, submitted a concurrent resolution demanding that only one member of a family be permitted to work for the state.

CLAIMS OF $531,393 IN KOEHRING ESTATE

Milwaukee—(AP)—Claims on file in county court against the estate of the late Philip A. Koehring, wealthy Milwaukee industrialist, today totaled $531,393. The incumbencies were boosted over the half million mark by the filing of claims totaling $101,393 by the National Equipment corporation and the Koehring company, firms which Koehring organized and headed up until his death. He was found shot to death in his automobile near Mauston, Wis., last October.

EXPECTS EARLY ARREST OF RACINE EMBEZZLER

Racine—(AP)—Encouraging reports from Texas regarding the search for Charles Harvey, 22, charged with embezzlement of $37,000 from the Racine American Trade and Savings bank, today prompted Chief of Police Grover Lutter to predict that the fugitive will be arrested soon.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles authorities advised Chief Lutter that Ralph Baughard, 25, cousin of the missing bank clerk, had offered to return voluntarily to Racine to face charges of participating in the theft.

Information given by Baughard following his arrest in Los Angeles Wednesday directed the search for Harvey to the vicinity of Laredo, Texas, on the Mexican border. Police recovered $10,500 when they seized Baughard.

ALLEGED KIDNAPER IS SENT TO REFORMATORY

Green Bay—(AP)—Norman Wallenfang, one of four youths charged with kidnaping Earl Sears, Ben Hoefs and Emer Giese, about two weeks ago, was taken to the Wisconsin State reformatory today to serve a one to three year term for holdup in the summer of 1930. Wallenfang had been sentenced, but execution stayed and he was placed on probation in custody of the state board of control. The board surrendered him upon learning of his connection with the alleged kidnapping.

THREE CONFESS GUILT IN NINE DARING RAIDS

Group of Suspects Seized by Officers in Lake Forest Apartment

Chicago—(AP)—The police said today they had tightened their grip of evidence around a band of daring bank robbers they seized in a lightning swoop on an apartment in the fashionable suburb of Lake Forest.

Six men were under arrest and three were officially said to have confessed staging nine spectacular holdups of six Illinois, one twice, and two Wisconsin banks in which bank officers were terrorized into helping the robbers to loot estimated at $70,000.

The raid on the apartment was staged last night and so rapid were the movements of the police that four men found there had no chance to reach for an arms rack on which hung 13 shotguns, four revolvers and 12 automatic pistols.

Records of midwestern bank holdups of recent date and of kidnappings were being scanned and questioning was pursued by the officials in the hope of clearing up the crimes. Officials of victimized banks were summoned to view the men.

Although early police reports placed loot recovered at the Lake Forest apartment at about $15,000 in cash and several thousand dollars in securities, later announcements said the amount was about $5,000 in cash and no securities.

Three Confessed
The men whom the authorities credited with the confessions were Mickey Yaro, tenant of the apartment; Edward Bennett and Ed Hall.

CHEESE MARKETS EXPERIMENT ENDS

Contracts With 150 Factories in Swiss Division Are Terminated

Monroe—(AP)—The district's three-year experiment with the cooperative market of foreign type cheese closed today.

Contracts of more than 150 Green-cheese factories in the Swiss division with the National Cheese federation terminated by agreement, the federation having granted a cut of one month from the original May 1 contract expiration.

Joseph Achermann, who managed the foreign type pool for the federation, said he will continue activities in behalf of the farmers who were federation members until the storage stocks are sold.

The Monroe Times commenting on the future of the Swiss cheese industry in Wisconsin, says:

"Even if there are varied opinions expressed, there seems unanimity on the point that more than ever before it will be necessary for a factory to produce high quality cheese this season if it wants to dispose of its produce at a satisfactory figure."

"With only the dealers in the field in the 1932 season to handle all the output, whereas in the past three years the federation has handled more than half, there will be a rush for the factories producing high grade cheese."

SEARCH IN GERMANY FOR HEIRS TO HUGE ELLA WENDEL ESTATE

Berlin—(AP)—A search for heirs to the estate of Ella Wendel, who died in New York leaving a great fortune, is being conducted through East and West Prussia, by Edward J. Bloom, of San Francisco, on behalf of a group which claims descent through the male line.

He has carried his research back to 1704 to Jurgen Heinrich Wendel, from whom Ella Wendel was descended.

The clan originally inhabited a small island in the Baltic sea, came to the mainland, scattered along the coast and finally spread into all parts of the world.

G. O. P. HOUSE WHIP DIES AT CAPITAL

Rep. Albert H. Vestal of Indiana, Succumbs at Naval Hospital

Washington—(AP)—Representative Albert H. Vestal of Indiana, the Republican whip of the house died today at the Naval hospital.

Vestal's death was announced by Sergeant of Arms Kenneth Romney of the house.

Two days ago Vestal collapsed and was sent to the Naval hospital. His condition had been reported as improving.

Vestal, who was 57 years old, was elected to the 66th congress from the eighth Indiana district and had served continuously since. He was born Jan. 18, 1857, on a farm in Madison-co., Indiana. He is a graduate of Valparaiso university and was admitted to the bar when only 21 years old. He was prosecuting attorney of the 50th Judicial circuit in Indiana from 1900 to 1904. He is survived by his widow and two children.

Sergeant of Arms Romney said Vestal died at 10:55 a. m. Funeral arrangements are to be completed later in the day.

The Indiana had been Republican whip for the last six years and in that capacity had been brought into close contact with the Republican membership, his duties being the mustering of party forces for votes on the floor.

Until the reorganization of the house at the beginning of this session, he had been chairman of the patents committee and sponsored numerous measures to revise the patents and copyright laws.

When the house convened Representative Hawley of Oregon, ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, told the members that because of the importance of the pending tax bill, an adjournment out of respect to Vestal would not be asked.

"We believe that if Mr. Vestal could be communicated with he would say the welfare of the country should come first," Hawley said. "We will ask an adjournment out of respect later."

ASK NEW TRIAL IN IOWA CATTLE TEST DISPUTE

Anamosa, Iowa—(AP)—Defense attorneys for J. W. Lenker and Paul Moore, Cedar-co. farmers, today began preparation of a motion for a new trial following conviction of the two men yesterday on charges of conspiracy to obstruct enforcement of the state bovine tuberculosis test law.

When the house convened Representative Hawley of Oregon, ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, told the members that because of the importance of the pending tax bill, an adjournment out of respect to Vestal would not be asked.

BULLETIN

Madison—(AP)—By leading throughout the entire contest, Neenah advanced to the finals of the consolation flight, defeating Neenah, 18 to 11, at the state high school basketball tournament here this afternoon.

FINAL RITES AT CHAPEL FOR FRED BACHMAN

Wisconsin State Officials and Labor Leaders Attend Services

Citizens of Appleton, Wisconsin labor circles, and state government officials paid their final respects to the late Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer and ardent labor supporter, at Memorial chapel Friday afternoon. Dr. J. A. Holmes was in charge of the chapel service, and at the grave Henry Ohls, president of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, paid tribute to the labor leader.

Bearers were city hall officials: Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, George Peotter, assessor; Joseph Schweitzer, poor commissioner; John N. Wetland, building inspector; George Gauslin, plumbing inspector; and Lloyd Schindler, engineer.

Honorary bearers were Senator Robert LaFollette, Jr., Senator John J. Blaine, Governor Philip LaFollette, Congressman George J. Schneider, A. R. McDonald, chairman, and William Dinneen, secretary of the Public Service commission of Wisconsin; Henry Ohls, president of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor; William T. Evjue, editor of the Capital Times; Daniel Grady, member of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin; Frank H. Kuehl from the attorney general's office; Ralph M. Immel, assistant general of the Wisconsin National guard, Senator Anton Miller, Assemblyman William Bay, Anton Jansen, president of the village of Little Chute and secretary of the Farm Labor league; Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Judge Theodore Berg, Judge E. V. Werner, Judge Fred Heinemann, L. Hugo Keller, Nic Berg, A. K. Ellis, Charles Hoffensperger, John Balliet, Thomas Hughes, Arthur Jones, Chief George T. Prim, Chief George McGillan, Carl Becher, city clerk; members of the common council, C. O. Davis, Mike Steinhauer, C. D. Thompson, Oren Earle, Walter Gmeiner, George Richard, C. J. Wassenaar, Robert McGillan, Richard Groth, Hassman, Phillip Vogt, and H. G. Kitterer; Al Koch, John Hantschel, Chief R. H. McCarty, Kaukauna; Alderman T. E. McGillan, Menasha; H. L. Davis, John R. Riedl, David Smith, Mike Mack, chairman of the county board; Matt Brill of the Kaukauna Labor council; Samuel Sigman, Charles Green, representative of the Elks lodge, Joseph Boelsen of the Eagles, J. J. Hauer of the Modern Woodmen; William Eggert of the German Masonerchor; Patrick Vaughan of the Equitable Reserve association; Carl Smith and Albert Schultz of the Trades and Labor council.

First efforts to drag the baby to safety with a rope were futile. A pick and shovel brigade moved quickly to sink the parallel shaft. A steam shovel was wheeled into place, but it balked at the rock. Then, a compressed air drill was found, and shifts of two and four men, working with all their might, conquered the barrier.

Down to 22 feet, a two foot tunnel was dug into the drill hole. Tearing loose stones and earth from Gerald's small body, the workers drew the baby with infinite care to the shaft.

Dr. Pinnell, Dr. F. L. Wormington and Dr. Frank Merrivether, the latter head of the bureau of mines clinic, gave first aid.

Fresh air, warmed electrically at the first call of dusk, was pumped to Gerald. Gas tubes were set. Light and telephone lines were used. Self appointed marshals pressed the crowd back.

Ivan Fischer, assistant state's mine inspector, directed the rescue.

BOAT LEAVES DULUTH TO OPEN NAVIGATION

Duluth, Minn.—(AP)—While harbor lights flashed here for the first time this year, the fishing craft Winah cleared the port of Duluth last night, opening the 1932 navigation season at the head of the lakes.

Commanded by Captain Martin Christiansen, the ship, formerly Andrew Carnegie's yacht, departed for Grand Marais with a load of lumber and other supplies for the residents of that little north shore community.

Returning here Friday, Captain Christiansen will depart for Isle Royale Saturday with 10 fishermen who will spend the summer on the island.

POSTMASTERS NAMED

Washington—(AP)—Peter F. Paszek, Milwaukee; John S. Farrell, Green Bay, and William D. Devine, Madison, today were nominated by President Hoover to be postmasters of their cities.

Surgeon Who Performed 2 Operations On Self Dies

Kane, Pa.—(AP)—Dr. Eran O'Neill Kane, 72, who attained nation-wide note in 1913 by removing his own appendix and who recently performed a second operation upon himself, died today.

The surgeon, long prominent for his work in treatment of cancer, died at 4 o'clock a. m. after a siege of pneumonia. He has been in ill health for several weeks.

A few months ago Dr. Kane performed the second operation on himself to relieve hernia. As was the case in his first feat, he used a local anesthetic and mirrors. He said the operation was successful.

The surgeon was active in seeking legislation controlling surgical and medical practice. He regarded the

Child Rescued From Mine Drill Hole In Oklahoma After Eleven-Hour Battle

Miami, Okla.—(AP)—Brave Baby Gerald Collins lived today, saved from a terrifying prison deep in a mine drill hole by strong arms and warm hearts.

Wan and bruised, but with a courageous "I'm all right," the three-year-old, doubled up for 11 hours 20 feet below the surface of the earth at the Mary Ann Lead and Zinc mine near Picher, was rescued through a parallel shaft last night.

"He's alive," cried a husky miner. Out from beyond the lights of the little rescue area a roar of thanks echoed through the hills from the throats of thousands of watchers.

Whirled in an ambulance 11 miles to the Baptist hospital here cuddling in the mother's embrace of Mrs. Paul Collins, little Gerald "talked a blue streak" and didn't appear badly hurt.

But X-ray pictures were scanned today for possible fractures by three physicians who waited at the rescue shaft until the boy was taken carefully from the drill-hole.

There was danger, too, said Dr. General Pinnell, of pneumonia as a result of exposure.

Toddling after his workbound father, Gerald stopped to play about the 250-foot drill hole yesterday morning. Its maximum diameter is about a foot. He fell in and with his knees doubled up and his arms pinned above his head, wedged 20 feet down. There he stayed until volunteers and miners of the tri-state lead and zinc district got him out after a frantic battle to pierce solid rock.

"Hurry daddy, take me, take me!" the little boy called out as his rescuers, working in small squads, neared success.

"Gee, but he's a gritty one," cried "Daddy" Collins, young mine prospector.

First efforts to drag the baby to safety with a rope were futile. A pick and shovel brigade moved quickly to sink the parallel shaft. A steam shovel was wheeled into place, but it balked at the rock. Then, a compressed air drill was found, and shifts of two and four men, working with all their might, conquered the barrier.

CLINTONVILLE 1ST IN DEBATE CONTEST

High School Team Wins State Championship in Madison Competition

Madison—(AP)—Clintonville high school's debating team won the state championship at the final round of competition here last night.

Kenosha and Eau Claire teams won second and third places, respectively. The debaters argued the merits of a state compulsory unemployment insurance law.

Pres. Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin, presented the winning team with a state championship cup, and the coaches with banners and members of the three teams with medals.

Negative teams emphasized the danger of an unemployment insurance law giving industries out of the state and the possibility of compensation rates becoming a political football. They also contended such a law was not applicable to agriculture.

Affirmative teams countered with the assertion that industry would gain nothing by leaving the state if unemployment insurance were national in scope. The affirmative also contended that unemployment insurance would "flatten" the business cycle and by placing purchasing power in the hands of the unemployed would avert panics in periods of depression.

TRIPLE FUNERAL FOR THREE FIRE VICTIMS

Whitehall, Wis.—(AP)—Triple funeral services for Fred Schariaw, 82, his daughter, Fredericka, 52, and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Anton Schariaw, 36, will be held at the St. John Lutheran church at Arcadia Sunday afternoon. They were fatally burned when fire destroyed the Schariaw home at Arcadia early yesterday.

DIVIDENDS ON STOCKS TO BE SUBJECT TO TAX

Only Few More Points Remain to Be Ironed Before Final Action

GARNER HITS ESTIMATE Garner Says Mills. Hoover Could Help Trim U. S. Expenses

Washington—(AP)—The house today again rejected the sales tax which once before it had stricken from the new revenue bill.

Washington—(AP)—The house neared the end of its tax writing job today when it incorporated in the new revenue bill an amendment to subject dividends paid on stocks to the normal income tax rates.

At present the dividends of stocks are taxable under the surtax. The maximum normal income tax is 7 per cent. The new levy would expire on July 1, 1934.

On the basis of revised ways and means committee estimates, the $38,000,000 item brought the total thus far placed in the revenue bill to $1,049,000,000. Under the revision, the committee reduced its estimates $37,000,000 from the $990,000,000 total announced last night.

The amendment was adopted by a standing vote of 133 to 90, but a teller vote was demanded upon which the count was 130 to 105.

An amendment to exempt the first $10,000 of income from dividends was rejected.

Only a few more points remained to be straightened out before the house began consideration of whether it will pass the bill it has written, or will change some vital phases of it.

At about the time that Speaker Garner was calling the treasury estimates "unfair," the committee was approving an amendment to subject dividends from stocks to the normal income tax rate.

Mills estimated the bill as it stands now would lack $150,000,000 of balancing the budget because the appropriations for the next fiscal year could not be trimmed $243,000,000 as the committee had estimated.

Garner, in a conference with newspapermen, said that "if Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mills would cooperate we could reduce expenses $250,000,000 without the least trouble."

"Instead of having that cooperation, every cabinet member is going over to the senate and yowling that we are ruining their departments," he said. "How are you going to get anywhere when that happens?"

Could Cut Needs
"These same cabinet officers and Mr. Hoover could save that $250,000,000 themselves if they wanted to. They refuse to do it. It could be done, it ought to be done and it will be done."

Mills said in a statement that savings in appropriations expected by the committee to amount to $243,000,000 would not be effected. He estimated that they would not exceed $150,000,000.

Acting Chairman Clegg of the ways and means committee said the committee reduced its estimate on savings to $20,000,000. The balance would be taken care of in an amendment to be brought in today, he said.

As the committee pondered what additional taxes it would offer for the bill before consideration of the measure is finished today by the house, Representative Clancy (R., Mich.) said no reconsideration would be sought of the 3 per cent tax on automobiles, 2 per cent on trucks and 1 per cent on accessories. AN

DETECTIVES TRYING TO SOLVE BRIDGE MYSTERY

New York—(AP)—Private detectives were out today trying to learn for E. J. Culbertson and his National Bridge association how diagrams of 15 "secret" hands to be played tonight in the world bridge Olympic fell into the possession of speculators and others.

Culbertson, though perturbed, issued a statement saying none could profit by advance knowledge of the hands since they must be bid against par and only he and members of his organization knew that par.

The diagrams were sent out to game captains who were to hold them secret until the moment of play tonight and then were to make up hands from them for the players.

BALANCED BUDGET IS APPROVED IN FRANCE

Paris—(AP)—The French parliament after a session which lasted all night and through the entire morning approved a balanced budget today for the period from April 1 to Dec. 31.

The budget calls for receipts of 41,100,533,000 francs and expenditures of 41,091,591,000. The chamber adopted the final draft of the bill by 455 to 55.

Commission Opposes Loans To Pay Railroads Notes To Banks

BUT APPROVES B. AND O. PLEA FOR 7 MILLION

Request for Million by Same Road Rejected by Federal Body

BULLETIN
Washington—(P)—Jurisdiction over loans to railroads would be transferred from the Reconstruction corporation to the Interstate Commerce commission under a bill introduced today by Senator Coughlin (R., Mich.).

Washington—(P)—The Interstate Commerce commission today again expressed its opposition to loans by the reconstruction corporation to railroads to pay notes held by private banks.

It refused to approve a request by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company for $1,000,000 with which to pay three notes due New York and Baltimore banks on April 26. The commission, however, indicated it would take up the question again when the road had made efforts to take care of the loans through private sources.

At the same time a loan of $7,000,000 to pay bills; money due for the purchase of a short line railroad which the Baltimore and Ohio had requested it to take over; three real estate mortgages; equipment trust obligations and Chicago taxes, was approved.

The Baltimore and Ohio had asked for $55,000,000 to meet maturing obligations and other needs over the next nine months. The commission put off consideration of most of the loan until "the results of operations for intervening months are known."

Noting "further negotiations" as the part of the applicant looking toward additional private financing.

The road had asked money to pay a $500,000 note held by the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company of New York; a $250,000 note by the National City bank of New York; and one for $250,000 by the First National bank of Baltimore. All three loans are due April 26.

An $800,000 note for equipment obligations due April 26 was approved.

Last week the commission protested against private bank loans being paid with Reconstruction Finance corporation funds when it approved a loan of $12,800,000 to the Missouri Pacific railroad of which $4,850,000 was to pay half of notes held by three New York banks.

HOUSE TURNS DOWN TOBACCO PROPOSAL

Measure Would Have Increased Tax on Unmanufactured Product

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—The house of representatives late Thursday rode roughshod over the amendment proposed by Representative John M. Nelson of Madison for a three-cent increase on the tax on unmanufactured tobacco with four cents a pound to be refunded to cooperatives on tobacco bought from them.

Nelson and Representative Gardner Withrow of LaCrosse spoke for the amendment as an aid to cooperatives, but acting chairman Charles R. Crisp of the ways and means committee opposed it and the house loudly voted to close all debate while Representative Thomas R. Amble of Racine was vainly trying to get recognition to speak for it.

Nelson said he would raise fifty-eight million dollars revenue but Crisp replied that, because of the debate, it would do no such thing and would be discriminating against tobacco growers who do not sell to cooperatives.

Withrow and Nelson pleaded for the 9,400 Wisconsin tobacco growers of whom eight thousand belong to the Wisconsin tobacco pool and produce 85 per cent of the 45 million pounds grown in the state.

Since the organization of the pool over 25 million dollars in taxes have been paid to the government on tobacco it produces while the growers have got only eighteen and a quarter million for their tobacco, Nelson said. Withrow said manufacturers discriminate against the cooperatives and the proposed amendment would help overcome the discrimination.

Emerson Eila of the Wisconsin pool drafted the proposal.

250 VOTES CAST IN CHAMBER ELECTION

Approximately 250 votes have been cast in the chamber of commerce election, for five new directors. The chamber membership will select five new directors from a list of 10 candidates. The polls in the chamber office will close at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, April 8.

26 Appleton Players In World Bridge Olympic

Twenty-six Appletonians have made reservation to play in the World Bridge Olympic tonight. Play of the 16 hands here will start at 8 o'clock this evening. More 50,000 players throughout the world will play the same 16 hands this evening.

The tournament is sponsored by the National Bridge association, an Ivy Culbertson organization. Most of the hands are trick hands. Gold and silver trophies to the number of 50 are the rewards.

The hands have been sent out by Mr. Culbertson's organization to 1,000 game captains sworn not to reveal them until a few minutes before play gets underway. D. P. Steinberg, Sr., is making arrangements for the local contest.

Appleton players in the tournament are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan, W. J. Roemer and Dr. George E. Massart, Bert Manser and David Smith, L. E. Sugerman and Casper Miller, R. S. Powell and H. L. Davis, Mrs. Raymond Peterson and Mrs. Paul Scallan, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Strange, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. I. P. Frank, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Frawley, Mr. and Mrs. George Maye, and Mr. and Mrs. Steinberg.

To Lecture Here

Prof. E. B. Hart, internationally known authority on nutrition, will lecture in Appleton next Wednesday. In the afternoon he will address a gathering of dentists of this area, and in the evening he will give a public lecture at Peabody hall. His subject will be Twenty-five Years of Progress in Nutrition.

CALL MEETING TO DISCUSS NUTRITION

Prof. E. B. Hart of State University Speaks Here Next Week

Nutrition and its bearing on individual health will be discussed at a public meeting at Peabody hall next Wednesday evening by Prof. E. B. Hart of the University of Wisconsin. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Professor Hart will address dentists of this area at the Conway hotel.

Prof. Hart comes to Appleton under the auspices of the Wisconsin State Dental society, in cooperation with the University Extension division as a feature of its post-graduate courses for dentists, now starting in five Wisconsin centers. During succeeding weeks there will be lectures by Dr. F. E. Roach, Los Angeles, and Dr. W. C. McBride, Detroit.

Prof. Hart has an international reputation for his research results in the field of nutrition. His message will carry special meaning for parents, nurses, physicians, and others who are in a position to guide family health through modern dietary principles. His topic will be Twenty-five Years of Progress in Nutrition. Members of the medical profession are invited to the Wednesday afternoon lecture.

STORY BY MISS FERBER PORTRAYED ON SCREEN

"The Expert," based on one of Edna Ferber's stories, "Old Man Minick," will be shown at the Appleton theatre Friday and Saturday. The picture features Chic Sale and Dickie Moore.

This is the second of Miss Ferber's stories to be filmed, the first one being "Cimarron."

The author, though born in Kalamazoo, Mich., spent her girlhood in Appleton. She attended high school here, became a member of the staff of the Evening Crescent at the age of 17, and after several years went to work on the Milwaukee Journal. Though she had published a number of short stories before, her first novel was "Dawn O'Hara."

GOODLAND AND RULE CONTINUE THEIR DEBATES

Candidates for Mayor Discuss Issues at Meeting in Fourth Ward

Bones rattled all over McKinley school Thursday night as the so-called skeletons of four administrations were hauled out by the heels and given a good shaking. But though the same tags of bones were opened by both mayoralty candidates, Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and A. C. Rule, former mayor, they dropped with different sounds on the ears of the audience which filled the school auditorium.

Mayor Goodland said it was thus and so. Mr. Rule argued that it was this way and that. They dug up the old bank case, played checkers with the subway, and paraded an array of figures on budgets, bank loans, balances and tax rates that bid fair to send the audience into delirium. They played different strings on the harps that sang out the tunes of the Steel Tube building, the airport, reassessment, permanent improvements, council harmony, and treasury balances.

Saying that if there had been no check on spending in the last two years, Appleton would be in the same boat as Chicago, Mayor Goodland said that he had started his first term in 1924 with a deficit of over $14,000, and a tax rate of $35 per thousand and had retired in 1926 with the same tax rate and a balance of $59,000 in the treasury, all bills paid; that after four years absence he had started his second term in 1929 with an empty treasury and a $35 tax rate, had brought about a $29 per thousand tax rate in 1932, and had kept the city from borrowing money until October of 1931. He said that in 1929, he said, the city had $300,000 and in 1931 only $50,000, with the result that by Dec. 31, 1931, bank loans had been cut down from $220,000 to $70,000. He stated that street department costs had been cut $50,000, that the poor had been well cared for, explained the decrease in the school appropriation, and disclaimed blame for the bank tax case and the subway, saying that the citizens had voted for the subway and that the bank case had started 10 years before he was mayor and that unfortunately the city had to pay the piper in the bank case during Rule's administration. He gave figures to prove the value of the constantly changing environment, should have attained the degree of order and discipline that exists among some of the older nations of the west. But we might reasonably hope that we would not sink into a defeatist attitude before the barbarism in our midst. There must be some reason why we are so continually frustrated when we seek to arouse ourselves into action.

Objects to Comparison

Taking exception to most contentions made by Goodland, Rule argued that there could be no fair comparison between 1931 and 1929 figures, that in 1929 the public had money to spend and was clamoring for improvements, while in 1931 the depression had set in and no one wanted to spend money. He said that in 1929 the city had spent $275,000 on permanent improvements, while during Goodland's last year only $58,000 had been spent on improvements, that consequently during his last year as mayor the city had spent $718,000, compared to $493,000 during the last year Goodland was at the helm. Because of the heavy drain imposed upon the city by the bank case, he said he vetoed the subway, but was finally forced to build it. The airport contract, he said, was made in order to bring the air line to Appleton.

With reference to the recent purchase of the Steel Tube building, he maintained that such a purchase would be sensible if the building could be used, that the building was in need of much repair, that the price was exorbitant, and that it moved the street department center from the heart of the city. He counted it peculiar that Mayor Goodland was crying for reduced expenditures, but that he would permit the purchase of the Steel Tube building.

Speaking of the reassessment, he said he could do a better job himself and that the future upkeep of the records in the assessor's office would entail the employment of two extra helpers. He questioned the ability of the council to stick to the budget prescribed for 1932, and spoke of the unforeseen contingencies which might arise, particularly the rebuilding of the S. Onida-st drawbridge, and the insistence of the state that the interceptor sewer project be continued. He advocated the acquisition of a compactor, spoke of the interference of Mayor Goodland and Alderman C. D. Thompson in the water works rate reduction appeal, and argued the value of the street cleaning done during the past two administrations.

The two candidates for the Fourth ward representation on the council, C. J. Wassenberg and George Brautman, spoke briefly and Dr. L. D. Little, pastor of All Saints Episcopal church spoke in behalf of the band, saying that the band should be a moral issue, not a political football. The question of band appropriations will be put to a referendum vote next Tuesday. The band played three numbers at the meeting.

TWO RIVERS HUNTING FOR STOLEN CANNON

Two Rivers—(P)—Threats or reprisal were heard here today as citizens discussed the theft of a 30-foot howitzer cannon, a relic of the World war.

The cannon disappeared from the local park Wednesday night about the time a group of bowlers left for their homes in the village of Mishicot, seven miles north.

A scouting party found the cannon guarding the entrance of a bank at Mishicot.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

THE UNDERWORLD

Of the great emotions aroused by the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, little seems to remain except a feeling of dull defeat. Men and women continue to hope that somehow the kidnapers will be moved to relent and restore the child, but in regard to the condition of general insecurity of which the deed is a heartbreaking symbol there is a kind of despairing impotence. The people know that they are beset by organized criminals who operate on a scale which has horrified the civilized world. They know that unless they master this evil it will master them. They know that the generation of city children is growing up in an atmosphere where racketeering is become an established institution. These children hear their elders complain and do nothing. Or they see their elders acquiesce and pay tribute. They even hear the racketeers admired for their cunning. Thus new recruits are enlisted and in a vicious circle the evil perpetuates itself.

The most destructive phase of the whole thing is the feeling of the ordinary man that he is impotent and defeated. For unless he can transmute his indignation into action, he will lose it and become demoralized, and the public spirit upon which everything else depends will evaporate in words. What, for example, could be more devastating than the conduct of the Administration in this matter? The President on the day he was inaugurated declared that crime was increasing and that confidence in rigid and speedy justice was decreasing; he announced that a remedy for these evils was "the most sore necessity of our times." And then what happened? He appointed a commission. The commission investigated. The President dismissed a vital part of the report, and then the excitement was over. The great war against crime was forgotten and the authority of the government impaired by the humiliating exhibition it had given of starting something which it could not finish.

We may quite pertinently ask ourselves what there is in our national life which paralyzes our efforts to deal with this problem. We cannot expect, I think, that a nation of pioneers and immigrants, who have lost touch with the established habits of the past and are still restless and unsettled in their constantly changing environment, should have attained the degree of order and discipline that exists among some of the older nations of the west. But we might reasonably hope that we would not sink into a defeatist attitude before the barbarism in our midst. There must be some reason why we are so continually frustrated when we seek to arouse ourselves into action.

My own notion is that we are constantly frustrated by two traditions which we deeply cherish. The first is our almost instinctive belief that the laws must represent not merely a reasonable adjustment of human interests but what the majority of the voters regard as the highest and noblest ideals. Thus American law-making makes no concession to the weakness of human nature. Our laws are written by men who have pleased their constituents by writing into law innumerable declarations of moral faith, and taken as a body the American statute books are an encyclopedia of moral perfection. They outlaw not only all crimes and frauds but also all the vices and peccadilloes and impure thoughts of man.

So thoroughly imbued are the American people with the idea that the law must express moral perfection that a proposal to modify prohibition is widely regarded as propaganda for drunkenness, a proposal to modify the laws against other sins is regarded as an invitation to a carnival of licentiousness. As a result, the American people have insisted upon outlawing human propensities in which they rather generally indulge. They have pushed into the underworld activities which in all other civilized countries are regulated by custom and law. And by their moral fervor as lawmakers they have made a large part of the people allies and clients of lawbreakers.

But only do the American people insist that the written law shall be uncompromising with unrighteousness; they insist at the same time that the government which executes these laws shall be weak. The same voters and the same lawmakers who enact laws that no despotism has even been able to enforce are jealous to the point of absurdity at intrusting the executive and judiciary with power. It is fair to say, I think, that we have the strongest laws and the weakest government of any highly civilized people. Nowhere else, I think, are the police of a great city like New York under the control of politicians who are locally elected. Nowhere else, I think, are judges so tied to fluctuating political majorities and nowhere else are they so ignominiously entangled with legislative rules.

The American distrust of the executive and of the judiciary, which expresses itself in a refusal to give them authority and dignity, is, I suppose, an inheritance from the struggle of the colonies against the crown. Whatever its origin, there can be little doubt that Americans unconsciously think that the preservation of their liberty is bound up with the weakness of the executives and the judiciary.

These two ingredients of our national mind aground in large measure, I think, for the rise of the underworld and for our impotence in combating it. By passing excessive laws we put a premium on lawlessness; by refusing power to the government we stultify the execution of the laws. These, too, are the reasons why our efforts at reform expire so quickly. Any reform that amounts to anything requires modification of laws which embody exorbitant moral aspirations and a grant of power which must look like an infringement of liberty.

The American people are as yet unprepared to give up their right to have laws which express their faith in moral perfection. They are unprepared to establish governments which have authority and power if that means giving up a measure of liberty and democracy. But until they are prepared to alter their basic prepossessions in these respects they will continue to have majestic laws and immense lawlessness. (Copyright, 1932, New York Tribune, Inc.)

ELECT DELEGATES TO MILK MEETING

Harvey Graupman, Otto Rohm Going to Madison Conference

BY W. F. WINSEY
Black Creek—At a meeting of the Black Creek local of the National Milk Pool in the town hall Wednesday evening delegates and alternates to the Madison conference Thursday and Friday, April 7 and 8 were elected. The delegates elected are Harvey Graupman and Otto F. Rohm and the alternates are Frank Withoff and William Beyer.

A committee of three to lay out the Black Creek milk producing territory into districts for the purpose of a house-to-house canvass for new members also was elected. The members of the districting committee are Ferdinand Brandt, Art Genske and Fred Hein. The Black Creek local has farmers with about 1,000 cows already signed up as members of the milk pool.

The purpose of the Madison conference is the adoption of a constitution and by-laws and the election of tentative state officers of the milk pool.

The principal speakers Wednesday evening were E. P. Boverman and Mr. Andrews, both of Leoman, and W. M. Singler, Shiocton.

STATE ASKED TO IMPROVE HIGHWAY 10

Delegation from Appleton, Brillion, Manitowoc Goes to Madison

A delegation of approximately 70 persons from Appleton, Brillion and Manitowoc appeared before the Wisconsin Highway commission at Madison Thursday afternoon in an effort to speed up a project to pave Highway 10 from Reedsville to Appleton. The Appleton delegation, representing the chamber of commerce, was composed of J. R. Whitman, leader, R. T. Gage, W. E. Smith, Kenneth H. Corbett, and George Schaefer, chairman of the town of Harrison board. About 50 from Brillion were present.

After hearing testimony, John C. Schmidman, chairman of the state commission, said the following should be accomplished before the work could be started: The Calumet-co board must approve the project under its bond issue; the Manitowoc board must authorize a bond issue for its share of the project and preliminary surveys for relocations of part of the highway must be made.

Mr. Schmidman said that in view of the necessary preliminary work, he believed the project could not be advanced until next year, and he urged the county boards to take advantage of the emergency law which permits them to be bonded up to two and one-half per cent of their valuation for road work. The emergency statute expires July 1, 1933.

Mr. Schmidman also pointed out that the district offices of the commission at Green Bay are overloaded with work on various highway projects at the present time, and that if the commission did launch the Highway 10 project it would take a long time to prepare specifications and other preliminary work.

Mr. Whitman, as spokesman for the chamber of commerce, suggested that when the project is launched the commission consider the rerouting of the highway from a point where it intersects with Highway 55 east of Appleton, along the Outagamie-Calumet-co line, into this city over Calumet-st.

Arrangements for the next production of the Little Theatre, "The Perfect Alibi" by A. A. Milne, will be discussed at this time, and reports will be given by the various committees.

War Veteran Found After Kin Seeks Him 11 Years

Chicago—(P)—An 11-year search for a war veteran ended here yesterday when he was reunited with his brother and started back to the Philadelphia home he does not remember.

Frank Richardson, an actor appearing at a Chicago theatre and a friend of the missing man, Tobias Burke, for 19 years, found him operating a filling station at Berwyn, a Chicago suburb, under the name of Joe Bond. He informed a brother, David Burke, who came to Chicago. Burke was injured during the World war while serving with the famous 108th Engineers of St. Louis. After his discharge he returned to his mother's home, Mrs. Mary Burke, 27th-st, Philadelphia.

One night he left his home to go to his brother-in-law's next door for a medicine tablet to stop a particularly severe headache. He left the house, not to be heard from again for 11 years.

Richardson and David Burke came upon the trail of Tobias through a man from St. Louis who recognized him in that city four years ago and again at the Berwyn filling station two weeks ago. He had with him a book which members of his war company had signed, including Burke.

Burke claimed he was Joe Bond each time, but the second time he wrote to the address in the veteran's book about the missing Burke. David Burke notified Richardson, who met Bond.

"Hello, Tobias," exclaimed Richardson. "You're wrong—I'm Joe Bond," Burke replied. David Burke then came to Chicago and further identified Tobias. They started yesterday for the home of another brother, Neil, an assistant warden at the new penitentiary at Graterford, Pa.

The brothers hoped Burke would recall his former life because they fear that if he does not remember his mother, it would be a great shock to her and she is already ill. Burke opened the filling station in Berwyn two years ago.

LIEUT. COL. BEVERIDGE HONORED WITH AWARD

Madison—(P)—Lieut. Col. Byron Beveridge, Madison, former city editor of the Appleton Crescent, inspector of the 32nd division is the first Wisconsin officer to be awarded the Purple Heart with oak leaf by the war department. The medal, presented in recognition of meritorious service, was originated by George Washington in 1782 and reviewed this February in the latter's honor by the war department.

EXPERT URGES NEW METHODS OF ADVERTISING

Advertise Daringly, Stressing Good Will, Kelly Points Out

It's time to get down to the bed rock of business and do some real studying, T. K. Kelly, Minneapolis, advertising expert and bank official, told the Advertising club Thursday noon at Conway hotel. He prophesied tighter business conditions than ever in the future and an increasing competition in business.

Discussing salesmanship and advertising he criticized comparative price advertising and declared that 80 per cent of the clerks in stores today are not fit for retail work. Both of the factors, he pointed out, are handicaps to successful business.

Following prices, when people are fed up with it, isn't going to bring business," he said. "New methods of advertising are needed. New psychological forces have come into the merchandising field and the mediocre business men of today, under the right policy, will outstrip in the future the Schwab's and Rosen-thal's in business."

The speaker advocated business men to advertise daringly, and as a better medium, he stressed good-will advertising based on ideas that present business men are over-looking every day. He pointed out that newspaper advertising is a recognized factor in creating business.

Demand Speeded Up
"In this country, the demand has been speeded up to the extent that in 12 months time we accomplish what it takes a generation in Europe," he said.

"You have merchandise that is alive if you keep it alive by taking it off the shelves, out of boxes and putting it into your customers' hands over the counter."

"There are 100 points to sales-manship, 13 for the ears, two through feeling tasting, while 85 points are accomplished through the eyes. That is why a beautiful picture accomplishes more than words."

"The retailer has done a poor job. When he was buying the market he was all right, but when he has to sell the market he is all wrong. Now he must buy and sell. If newspapers lose lineage it is their own fault, too."

Education and analysis of business problems is what is needed, the speaker showed by illustration. He declared that no man has a monopoly on brains or a monopoly on ideas. Future advertisers who are successful will create a market by bringing out the hidden values of his merchandise and present it attractively.

"The cry that your town is different," he declared, "is all wrong. We all sleep the same way, drive the same cars, ride down the same side of the street and often eat the same things, no matter where the town."

NEW ADVANCE MADE IN PRICES OF CRUDE OIL

Oklahoma City—(P)—Crude oil flowed in the midcontinent field to draw prices as high as $1 a barrel again today.

The increase, boosting the top price from 85 cents, was announced last week by the Continental Oil company which led the way with the last previous hike. Sinclair and Barnsdall met the increase in Oklahoma; Vickers, Derby and Golden Rule in Kansas and Sinclair in Texas.

Boosted by the increase, the refined oil market held firm. Retailers said they expected prices of gasoline to jump 1 cent a gallon. Much, however, will depend on what other crude purchasers do.

Animal Judas Brings Home the Mutton!

Although he is unimaginatively called "Kitchoo," his name ought to be Judas Iscariot. For the ram pictured here, a useful pet of a slaughtering company at Lowell, Mass., has led more than 25,000 sheep to their deaths during his four years service as a treacherous decoy. At left you see him starting out, closely followed by a trusting flock, for the slaughterhouse a mile across the fields. At right, "Kitchoo" is posing proudly with his owner, Nick Tamaralsis, proprietor of the abattoir. And note his smug expression in the close-up, upper center. You'd think he'd look a little sheepish.

SUMMER OPERA HALTED BY SHORTAGE OF FUNDS

Chicago—(P)—For lack of money summer opera at Ravinia will be suspended this year for the first time in two decades.

This was announced by Louis Eckstein, president and chief guarantor of the open air musical classic, who expressed hope, however, that there would be a resumption in 1933.

The opera cost its guarantors $29,829 last season, of which Mr. and Mrs. Eckstein contributed $18,584 while other guarantors gave $91,245.

Investigator Testifies On Wisconsin Telephone Co. Earnings

BADGER QUIZ IS LAUNCHED AT MADISON

Commission Told Net for 17 Years Totaled Nearly 36 Million

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin Telephone company, during the last 17 years has earned net income available for preferred and common stock dividends of $35,916,195, and on the common stock, held largely by the American Telephone and Telegraph company it has consistently paid $3 a share, John Bickley, Public Service commission investigator testified in the state wide rate investigation today.

The investigation opened in the commission's hearing rooms with an array of local talent for the company and the state lining both sides of the counsel table. There was a mixed audience of farmers and interested observers. Commissioner David Lillenthal presided and Commissioner A. R. McDonald sat with him.

The statewide rate case is an outgrowth of the company's request for a rate increase in the city of Madison and of rate complaints entered by several other Wisconsin cities. The commission decided that instead of passing upon individual cases it should inquire into the reasonableness and fairness of the telephone company's rates in the state as a whole.

For months it has been working on an audit of the company's books and the official records it files with the commission. Bickley, who is chief of the department of accounts and finance, testified from an exhibit compiled by him and other accountants which deals with the company's financial structure in general.

Concerns Two Periods Bickley's initial testimony was concerned with two periods in the company's history, the 17 years from 1915 to 1931 and the eight year period from 1931 to 1934.

He described the company's expansion in the eight year period in figures showing that the amount of telephone plant increased from $25,917,515 at the end of 1924 to $75,138,211 at the end of 1931.

During the 17 year period, he testified, the earnings per share on the common stock were $11.22, the rate of dividends on the common stock was $8 a share and the return on common stock and surplus was $9.02.

The gross income for the 17 year period, Bickley said, was $38,167,270, which was 19.35 per cent of total revenues. Deducting from this $2,510,075 of interest charges he arrived at a figure of $35,657,195 of net income available for dividends.

The dividends on preferred stock in the 17 year period amounted to $3,311,767 and the dividends on the common stock paid to the A, T, and T, were $23,224,680 leaving a balance of income amounting to $9,997,748, or 4.91 per cent of total revenues which was transferred to surplus.

Earnings in 1931 Mr. Bickley testified that the earnings in 1931 were 13.36 per cent but that the dividends were 17.69 per cent. While the dividends for last year expressed in percentage of the total operating revenue were in excess of the earnings on the common stock this did not mean an operating loss, he said.

The examination of Bickley was conducted by Major Alvin C. Reis, special investigator for the commission. Attorney Edwin S. Mack of Milwaukee, member of the counsel for the company, interposed questions as he explained how the computations had been made.

The cities of Milwaukee, Madison and Waukegan entered appearances at the hearing and a Commission investigation of the old Finnish paper, "Wisper, Wisper" followed by Handel's "Great Bagan." After the solo numbers the combined voices gave Metcalfe's "Absent" and Foster's "Swanee River."

Miss Irene Roserman presented a solo number, Reichardt's "In the Time of the Roses" and Henry Hadley gave the "Bugle Song."

Plays Here Soon

Wayne King's orchestra, famous dance orchestra which broadcasts throughout the winter from Chicago, will play at the Cinderella Sunday evening, April 10. This will be the only appearance of the orchestra, which is now on tour, in the state.

DISBAND GLEE CLUB ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

A Capella Choir to Continue Programs, Waterman Announces

The Lawrence college glee club, a college institution for 35 years, has been disbanded in favor of the A Capella choir, Dean Carl Waterman of the Conservatory of Music announced today.

The A Capella choir, a chorus of mixed voices has attained unusual popularity during the last year, singing on the Artists Series program as the concluding number, and giving a number of concerts at churches and before different organizations in the city.

It is expected that the choir will make the annual tours which the glee club formerly made each spring including the larger cities in Wisconsin and some of the neighboring states.

The disbanded of the glee club is directly attributed to the success of the choir which will take over all duties and traditional concerts formerly presented by the glee club.

COUNTY DEMOCRATS WILL MEET TONIGHT

John M. Callahan, Milwaukee, to Be Speaker at Conway Hotel

John M. Callahan, Milwaukee, candidate for election as delegate at large to the Democratic national convention at Chicago in June, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of Appleton and county Democrats in the Crystal room of Conway hotel at 8 o'clock this evening.

Henry S. Meyer, Appleton, candidate for district delegate to the convention, will preside.

The faction sponsoring tonight's meeting is working for the election of unregistered delegates, although Mr. Callahan has been a supporter of Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York.

Mr. Meyer will be host to Mr. Callahan and a number of Democratic leaders at dinner at Conway hotel preceding the public meeting.

RAIN OR SNOW ON MENU FOR SATURDAY

Rain or snow with a rise in temperature is probable tonight or Saturday, according to the weatherman.

He says occasionally rain will fall in the extreme south portions of the state and rain or snow in the northern portions.

Winds are shifting to the south and southeast, a good indication that wet weather is on the way. At 6 o'clock Friday morning the mercury registered 39 degrees above zero, and at noon it registered 41 degrees above.

SCHINDLER NAMED ON ENGINEERING GROUP

L. M. Schindler, city engineer, has been appointed a member of the reclamation committee of the Engineering society of Wisconsin for the ensuing year. E. R. Jones, Madison, is chairman, and P. H. Hinz, Madison, is the third member of the committee.

ARTILLERY BAND IN CONCERT TONIGHT

A concert by the 12th field artillery band will be played at Wilson Junior high school at 7:30 tonight, according to Edward F. Mummi, director. The program will consist of many well known band numbers and popular musical selections. Capt. Henry J. Serrano, of the Salvador Army will give a short talk.

STRIKE BEGUN IN BITUMINOUS COAL DISTRICT

About 75,000 United Mine Workers Members Out of Work as Result

Chicago—(AP)—America's unionized bituminous coal belt was a land of idleness today.

From Illinois east to the West Virginia panhandle, hundreds of mine tips were closed; approximately 75,000 members of the United Mine Workers were without work, and there was no indication of when operations would resume. Last night was the closing hour.

In Illinois, failure of miners and operators to agree on a new wage contract, after four weeks of conference, added between 43,000 and 46,000 diggers to the jobless lists.

Four thousand more men were thrown out of work in a similar situation in Indiana's deep shaft mines. The Indiana mine owners and laborers had adjourned their conference pending outcome of the Illinois meeting and neither group made any last-minute attempts to stall off the suspension.

In Illinois and Indiana, the shutdown was neither a strike nor shut-out. There was no agreement to continue operations.

In both states, efforts were expected to be continued to effect compromises on contracts.

In Ohio and the West Virginia panhandle, a strike called by District 6 officials of the United Mine Workers went into effect at midnight—following the failure of operators and miners to settle wage differences.

Twenty-five thousand men joined the idle ranks in Ohio fields and several thousand were expected by union officials to answer the strike call in the West Virginia panhandle.

Today was also a miners holiday; commemorating the signing 34 years ago of the first agreement with operators. This agreement included the eight-hour day followed the first general strike of the union.

In Illinois, some 25,000 more members of the union have been jobless for many months.

No trouble was expected today in any of the fields.

STRIKE IN EFFECT COLUMBUS, OHIO

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—A strike called affecting 25,000 coal miners in Ohio and several hundred others in the Panhandle section of West Virginia became effective today.

The call was issued by International and district officers of the United Mine Workers of America after mine owners of the area refused to discuss a new wage agreement with the union chiefs.

Of the 25,000 Ohio miners, 12,000 have been idle since Feb. 1 as a result of a strike in the Hocking Valley field where the operators reduced the wage scale to $3 a day for laborers and 38 cents a ton for loaders.

While the present strike has been marked by frequent disorders, union leaders assure that the situation is under control and that the miners will be paid for the time they are out of work.

Only one demonstration was planned. At Bellville the miners will stage a parade in celebration of the adoption of the eight-hour day 34 years ago.

No disorder was anticipated by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson who has withdrawn the last of his national guard observers from the Hocking Valley, Sunday Creek and Pomeroy Bend fields. Three observers are kept in the Tuscarawas field.

Bidding for the power it wielded before the breakdown of the famous Jacksonville agreement in 1927, the United Mine Workers also issued a strike call to the bituminous miners of Illinois and Indiana, effective today. These miners, numbering approximately 50,000 failed to agree upon new contracts with the operators.

Lee Hall, president of District 6 of the United Mine Workers estimated that 10,000 Ohio miners had withdrawn from the union in recent years, but he predicted that the remaining 25,000 would answer the strike call in a body.

Chicago Man Is Paid For Eating Candy All Day Long

Chicago—(AP)—Paid to eat candy all day long.

That is William H. Beirer's job, the dream of every youngster. He is official "candy tester" for a national chain of candy manufacturers.

Beirer estimated that in his work he eats half pound of candy a day, in his nine years in that position with the candy company he said he has consumed well over half a ton.

As his daily routine, he samples the Chicago factory's products, those sent in by his company's other factories over the country, and confessions put out by competitors. In his spare moments he goes into the store room and bites into chocolates and bon-bons to see how the quality stands up as time passes.

And if he has any time left, he said he tries his hand and palate, at new recipes, sampling as he goes along.

One might expect him to have the proportions of an elephant. On the contrary, this man of 44 years, five feet, ten and one-half inches, weighs 183 pounds. Not long ago he saw he was putting on weight and checked this, he said, not by cutting down on his food nor slacking on his boss, but by increasing his exercise, which is normally a two-mile daily walk.

But his job, so advantageous from the juvenile viewpoint, isn't altogether a bed of roses, nor is it one that a person can undertake all at once.

"One has to grow into it, so to speak," he said, "gradually accustoming the system to the high intake of sweets."

Further, he has to watch his diet, eating in the main proteins and lots of vegetables and foods short on starches and carbohydrates.

One disadvantage of his profession, he said, is that he frequently runs into complications at home. His sense of taste, paid for as expert, makes it possible for him to detect instantly when the home cooking is off and what the trouble is.

"Too," he said, "just like the mail man who goes for a walk on his day off, I frequently make candy for my youngsters on Sundays."

STOCK BROKERS SEE THREAT IN GROWING TAXES ON DEALINGS

Business Now Only One-fifth of Present Volume, They Point Out

BY FRANK H. MCCONNELL Associated Press Financial Writer New York—(AP)—Stock exchange brokers, whose business has dwindled to about one-fifth of its 1929 volume, fear deeper inroads as a result of increasing taxes.

While they mostly insist taxes must be increased to balance the budget regardless of financial hardships that result, they express concern over the probable effects of the proposed federal tax on stock transfers, approved by the house yesterday.

In reviewing two and a half years of declining stock prices, they record the following changes in their fortunes:

Stock trading volume which in the boom period was considered normal at $9,000,000 shares a day on the exchange is now running near 1,000,000 shares a day.

Stock exchange sales which then brought around $500,000 are down around $100,000.

Brokers' revenues from arranging loans to carry marginal customers, which once netted many hundreds of thousands of dollars a year, are down to nominal size.

Further shrinkage is certain to develop in stock trading, they say, if the tax burden on customers becomes too heavy. They admit they cannot tell whether the new tax will be enough to stifle the day-to-day trader—but they insist it would seriously hamper him. In support of their argument, they figured out the cost of present and proposed tax rates on the round trip process of buying and selling a unit of 100 shares of stock.

Cite Transfer Costs Purchase and sale of the many shares of a stock selling at $3 entails a commission expense of $15; a New York state tax of $4; a proposed federal tax which at its minimum rate would be $4; thus making a total charge to the customer of $23. This amounts to 4.5 per cent of the purchase.

For a $20 stock, which is the most important barometer because the average price of stocks listed on the exchange stands close to that level, there is a $25 commission charge for 100 shares; $4 state tax; $5 proposed federal tax; making a total cost of $34, or 17 per cent.

For an $50 stock, the cost would be $49 commissions on 100 shares; $4 state tax; $29 federal tax, or $84 in all, amounting to 16.8 per cent of the purchase.

These charges, leading brokers contend, would make life difficult for investors who buy stocks outright to hold for years.

ESTATE HEARING IS ADJOURNED UNTIL MONDAY

John H. Coulter, Chicago, President of Company, on Stand

The hearing in county court, before Judge D. E. McDonald, Oshkosh, asking removal of trustees of the George F. Peabody estate, this noon was adjourned to Monday afternoon.

Adverse examination of John H. Coulter, Chicago, one of the trustees and president of the Peabody-Peabody company, took up most of Thursday afternoon's session and about an hour Friday morning.

Judge Fred V. Heinemann was on the stand a few minutes Thursday afternoon, as were bond salesmen who testified about the value of securities. A. E. Dettman, Appleton auditor, was on the stand for more than an hour Friday morning.

The plaintiffs are the Y. M. C. A., Lawrence college, city of Appleton and board of education. Dr. Alfred W. Hoyt, another trustee, was not in court this morning. Next Monday Dr. Hoyt will be the principal witness, it is expected.

Counsel for Dr. Hoyt and the other trustees said they had not expected he would be called, and that he had left the city.

Accountant on Stand A. E. Dettman, Appleton accountant, testified about examination of the auditor's reports of the estate and store with reference to the manner in which the books were kept.

Previous to Mr. Dettman's appearance on the stand John H. Coulter, trustee, testified in an adverse examination Thursday. He said that in 1928 two department stores attempted to purchase the Peabody-Peabody company, but added that Joseph D. Steel, a former trustee, objected.

Thursday afternoon Mr. Coulter told about his business experience, his law practice in Chicago, and recalled circumstances under which he became a trustee. He said he had known George F. Peabody many years, he and his wife calling Mr. Peabody "Uncle George." Mrs. Coulter's mother and Mrs. Peabody were sisters, he said.

The progress of Mr. Coulter's connections with the Peabody estate and Peabody-Peabody company were reviewed. Mr. Coulter stated that he transacted most of his duties in Chicago, although he often came to Appleton. He said that Mr. Nelmer, made frequent trips to Chicago to discuss business affairs with him.

When pressed for specific instances of his work, he stated he took part in the transaction in which the Walk-Over Shoe company store established here.

Security Values Drop Previous to Mr. Coulter's examination it was testified by two Appleton bond house representatives that certain securities owned by the estate had decreased in market value. Many were considered speculative securities, one witness said.

Mr. Coulter, when asked what he considered their worth and value, said he thought them good securities, had invested private funds in many of them and felt that with better business conditions the market value of the bonds would increase. It previously had been testified that a list of bonds valued by the estate at $59,000 was worth about $22,000 on the open market today.

Mr. Coulter said he did not remember having been warned by Judge Heinemann of county court that the fees drawn by him and the other trustees would be paid by the estate. He said he had been told the court wanted securities deposited in Wisconsin instead of Illinois and had caused transfer of bonds to this state immediately.

Reports secured by the trustees on the value of their securities were introduced as exhibits during the time Mr. Coulter was on the stand. Late in the afternoon Judge McDonald recalled that on the previous day he had asked one of the trustees directly, and all of them indirectly, to tell him on what basis they fixed their salaries as trustees.

Salaries Reasonable, Claim Mr. Coulter said he would undertake to answer that question, adding that in his opinion $2,000 for each director annually was a reasonable fee for the management of an estate aggregating between $500,000 and $600,000.

The court and defense attorneys then inquired as to Mr. Coulter's knowledge of Wisconsin trust laws, with reference to fees and interests. He said he did know the law but that attorneys for the trustees had not thought the fee excessive.

Judge Fred V. Heinemann, county judge for Outagamie county was on the stand a few minutes Thursday afternoon to testify that he had mentioned to trustees he thought their fees were excessive, that he had asked bond to be posted in Wisconsin instead of Illinois, and that he had expressed disfavor of certain investment house mortgages the estate had purchased.

GOLDEN MINUTES WASTED TODAY ON APRIL FOOL JOKES

Nonsense acts up many of the golden minutes today as the world indulged in April Fool pranks. Youngsters rang doorbells and called back over their shoulders a merry "April Fool", others were sent searching for needless, shore lines, sky hooks, and left-handed monkey wrenches. Mythical holes in stockings and spots on dresses caused momentary consternation, pocket-books on sidewalk were opened with expectation, and old tires on strings stopped many motorists on the road.

On The Political Front

New York—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith has a plan to balance the federal budget.

He told a radio audience last night he would meet one-third the estimated 1933 deficit of $1,350,000,000 through additional taxes, one-third through a tax on beer, and one-third by issuing bonds for proposed permanent construction work.

Charging the Republican administration with failure to act properly to relieve unemployment, he renewed his suggestion for an issue of "prosperity bonds" to foster expansion of public works.

ATTACHES PROGRESSIVES BARBOO—(AP)—Harry Dahl, La Crosse, regular Republican candidate for delegate-at-large to the national convention, addressing a Sauk-co Republican rally here last night, said Wisconsin is now reaping the harvest from the seeds of industrial unfairness persistently shown by the present administration.

"The Progressives have always pleaded with labor to elect them to office, so that they might promote the cause of labor by having industry," Dahl said. "Somehow by some sort of magic, the Progressives promised to make Wisconsin a laborers' paradise by soaking industry. The fallacy of this theory is now apparent to everyone."

Dahl urged Wisconsin voters to register a protest against LaFollette Progressive Republicanism in the state by electing conservative delegates at the polls next Tuesday.

LEGIONAIRES TALK ABOUT EMPLOYMENT

Conditions in County Reviewed at Council Meeting Last Night

The employment situation in the county was discussed last night by the county council of the American legion at a meeting at Little Chute. Four posts were represented. Appleton members of Oney Johnston post who attended were John E. Hantschel, Alfred C. Bossert, Hugo Keller, E. E. Lutz, C. O. Baetz, Edward Bass, A. B. Schuerle, and Herbert H. Helble.

Anton Jansen, president of the village of Little Chute, told of plans in vogue there to employ jobless men. Mr. Helble reported on the Appleton employment drive, and Arthur Schmalz told of plans undertaken at Kaukauna. Seymour said it had no unemployment problem.

Mr. Schmalz also reported on the pulp tariff bill in congress and L. Hugo Keller discussed improvements and plans for Camp American Legion at Lake Tomahawk. Mr. Keller is a member of the camp board.

EXPENSES TOO HIGH, HEIR TO FORTUNE OF $300,000 KILLS SELF

San Francisco—(AP)—Police today expressed the belief Leo M. Harkins, 20, heir to a $300,000 Honolulu fortune, shot and killed himself here yesterday because lavish spending in Reno, Nev., has exceeded his income.

Officers who arrested Harkins Wednesday at the request of New Mexico authorities said he told them he was to Reno with $3,000 and one party alone cost $4,000.

Neil West, operator of a "dude" ranch near Reno, charged a $937 draft drawn by Harkins had been returned unpaid.

Harkins was released to appear in court here yesterday morning. His body was found in a hotel room where he had shot himself, police said. Letters found in the room indicated he had tried to borrow $40,000 on his inheritance, which was held in trust.

Aug. 10, 1931, he filed suit for divorce in Reno against Mrs. Caroline Baldwin Harkins, a niece of Mrs. Edward M. Lewis, wife of the retired major general. The suit later was dismissed.

Harkins was a former regimental sergeant-major of the Twenty-seventh infantry, United States army. He was left the inheritance by the late William H. Lewers, wealthy Honolulu. He received only the income.

Associates said he was a former tennis star at Villanova college.

GETS 30 DAYS FOR WORTHLESS CHECK

Frank Rodoff, Milwaukee, was given a 30-day sentence in county jail Friday morning when he pleaded guilty of passing a worthless check for $12.50 on an Appleton merchant in May, 1931. Rodoff was arrested by Milwaukee police and brought here by county authorities Wednesday.

MISS ESTELLE REID

The body of Miss Estelle Reid, who died Tuesday at Scripps Memorial hospital, La Jolla, Calif., is expected to arrive in Appleton Sunday and will be taken to the Breitschneider Funeral home where it will remain until Monday morning. It will then be taken to Riverside chapel where funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The Rev. L. D. Urrs will be in charge and burial will take place in Riverside cemetery.

STALIN STILL MAN OF HOUR TO COMMUNISTS

Russian Leader Is by All Odds Most Powerful
Dictator in World

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles about the tenth anniversary of Joseph Stalin's election as general secretary of the Communist party, resulting in his accession to the control of the Soviet Union.

BY MILTON BRONNER
New European Manager

London—April 2 is a red-letter day in the "Red history" of Russia. It is the 10th anniversary of the election of Joseph Stalin as a general secretary of the Communist party.

The celebration is of international significance for three reasons.

First, Stalin is by all odds the most powerful dictator in the world today—in fact the most powerful the world has seen in recent times.

The anniversary also finds him deeply entrenched and more powerful than ever.

Second, the man Stalin himself, who is one of the most fascinating and interesting figures in history.

Third—and perhaps the most important one—it marks the near completion of the so-called five-year plan. The anniversary also creates speculation as to the success of this plan.

Clasp Is Still of Iron

As to Stalin, he still rules Russia with an iron clasp despite the claim of his former colleague and present bitter foe, Leon Trotsky, that Stalin's rule at Moscow is crumbling.

The exiled Trotsky from his island retreat at Prinkipo, Turkey, in a recent statement said Stalin's action in making his exile perpetual was a confession that his power was waning.

Trotsky believes his ideas, which are barred but manage to be smuggled into Russia, are gaining and are doing much to weaken the personal position of the party secretary.

Neither Stalin's name nor his position is quite what it seems to be.

When he was chosen secretary of the party in 1922, he was a long way from being ruler of Russia. He was one of the influential members of the Communist party but there were others who ranked far above him. Secretary general as a name doesn't signify any particular influence.

Stalin—his 53—was born Josef Vissarionovich Dzhugashvili. He adopted the name Stalin after he had grown to manhood and was rising to power. His birthplace was Tiflis in Caucasus, Georgia.

Priesthood Not His Liking

His father was a cobbler and his mother had ambitions that he should become a priest. So he was sent to a seminary—doubtless by the dint of much self-sacrifice on the part of his parents. But Stalin wasn't destined to be a priest.

In a short time the student was expelled for being insubordinate and for showing too much interest in radical movements. Among these movements was the collection—often by force—of money for carrying on revolutionary activities. Stalin was one of the collectors.

In this movement, the future ruler of Russia learned his first lessons in Communism. He repeatedly ran afoul of the law. Several times he was arrested and sent to Siberia only to escape and resume his revolutionary activities.

Presently, Stalin organized a staff. Collections increased. Revolutionary leaders were pleased, so Stalin moved up. He soon popped up as editor of a labor paper in the oil town of Baku on the Caspian Sea.

Builds Political Machine

The town was filled with laborers, who became the center of the Communist propaganda. Repeatedly the paper was seized but Stalin was accomplishing no end of work. He knew all the languages and dialects of the workers. He mingled among them. He studied them. He made them his friends. Stalin's paper became the most powerful of the Communist organs in Russia.

Stalin also was learning politics. He was as practical as he was hard-working. All these years he was building quietly and effectively a political machine that was destined to give him the reins of government.

When the revolution broke, he was among the leaders although his position in the government was not important. Yet he had been called for service by no less persons than Nicolai Lenin and Trotsky.

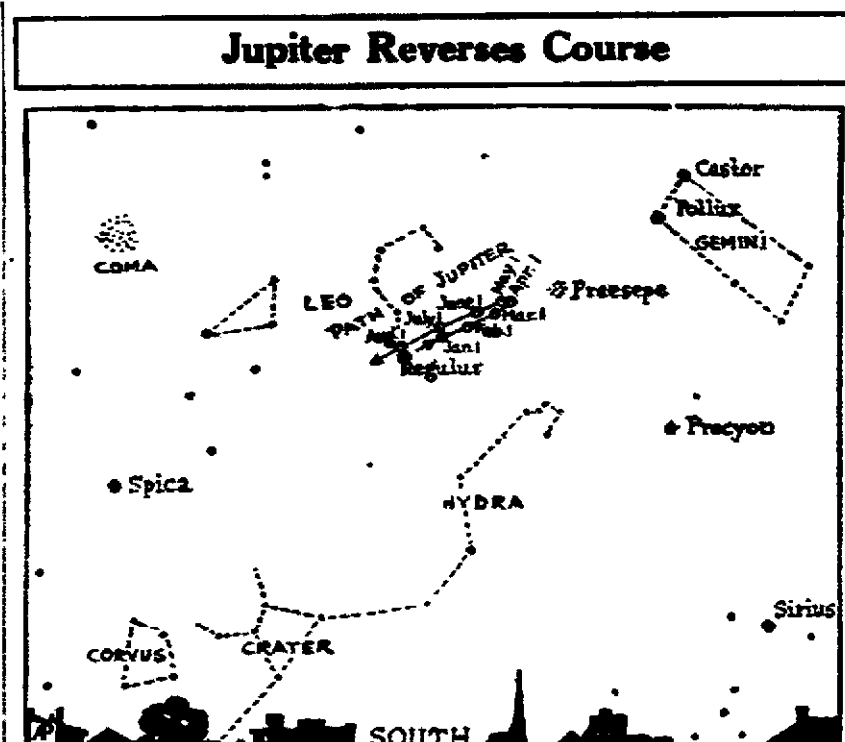

Then Lenin died. Stalin was elevated to be general secretary of the party. After his election, Stalin began to increase his power. His influence was spread through his carefully organized machine. He demonstrated that he knew as much about ward politics as any Tammany leader. And he placed his men in key positions while such men as Trotsky, Kamenoff and Wykoff seemingly held the authority.

Trotsky on the "Out"

Soon Trotsky and his friends found out that Stalin could outvote them every time and his accession as ruler of the Soviet was only a matter of time. At first, Stalin silenced his foes. Then he exiled Trotsky. His position was now secure. Today he has no opposition and through a strictly disciplined organization, he wields more power than the czar of Russia did in his palmiest days.

Perhaps the most valuable asset Stalin has is his personality. He lives a quiet, Spartan life, enriched by his chemistry-studying wife, and surrounded by his sturdy 11-year-old son and his small daughter who likes to hear her father tell stories.

He can be ruthless and is. But to close friends, he talks easily, smiles almost to the point of a grin and works hard. He likes to read the works of Lenin and does his rough best with native shrewdness to guide the party, which he uses as his mouthpiece in carrying out orders and wishes.

As the anniversary approaches, Stalin is being extolled. In fact he is being worshipped as a hero, with elaborate eulogies being heaped upon him.

So great has been this adoration that the word "vozhd" is being coupled with his name. That was the word reserved for Lenin. It means leader if an English equivalent can be found. It suggests the Italian word "duce" as applied to Mussolini. But Stalin is more than "Il Duce." He's Stalin, the biggest boss on earth.

EGG GRADING RULES

St. Paul—(AP)—Regulations establishing four egg grades became effective in Minnesota today. These are determined by weight and size and the fourth is included to permit non-grading farmers to market their product.

WIFE SPURNS TRUNK OF MONEY AND BONDS BUT WANTS ALIMONY

Chicago—(AP)—Maurice Lippert offered his wife a whole trunk full of money and bonds, but she wasn't to be fooled by that.

"I want my $150 alimony and that's all I want," she told Judge Daniel Trude. "Let him keep his trunk. I've looked through it. The money in it is in Russian rubles, pre-war, and the bonds are German, also pre-war."

Judge Trude gave Lippert until Monday to raise some American money or go to jail. If he does the latter he will be the 90th member of Chicago's present "alimony club."

PLANET JUPITER LOOMS BRIGHTLY IN APRIL SKIES

Will Reverse and Resume Its Eastward Motion This Month

By ROBERT H. BAKER
(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—The brilliant Jupiter may be seen high in the south in the evening skies of April.

On the first of the month it stands directly above the south point at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, about two-thirds of the way toward the zenith for observers in the latitude of New York.

This planet is easy to identify because it is brighter than any of the stars. Among the planets it is surpassed in brightness ordinarily only by Venus, now visible in the west in the early evening, and on rare occasions by Mars.

Since the beginning of the year Jupiter has been moving backward among the stars, toward the west. On April 8 it will reverse and resume its eastward motion, but so gradually at first that its progress scarcely will be noticed during the present month.

Throughout this month the planet will be found very nearly in its present location between the familiar scud of the constellation Leo and the Praesepe cluster in Cancer, which appears to the naked eye as a dim spot of haze.

During May the eastward motion will be more pronounced. Toward the end of August when it crosses into the morning sky Jupiter will have advanced beyond the bright star Regulus in the hands of the scud.

Jupiter revolves eastward around the sun once in a little less than 12 years. Each year therefore it advances one constellation of the zodiac and comes into view in the evening sky one month later than it did the preceding year.

The fairly steady eastward motion against the starry background is combined with an apparent annual swing caused by the earth's revolution. The planet proceeds therefore in a series of loops, as anyone who watches Jupiter from time to time can observe for himself.

This looped motion, which the other planets exhibit also, is demonstrated in a convincing way in the artificial sky of the planetarium where the planetary movements can be speeded up enormously.

With the telescope, Jupiter marks high among the snowpeaks of the heavens. Even a small telescope reveals four of its satellites, which appear as rather bright stars very nearly in line, and they swing back and forth about this line as they revolve around the planet in circular orbits now almost exactly edge-wise to the earth.

In the course of a revolution on each of the four bright satellites passes across the planet, casting its shadow on the disk, meanwhile as a round dark dot. During its swing in the opposite direction the satellite passes behind Jupiter and through its shadow. The times of these occurrences are predicted in advance in the almanacs.

STUDY AUTO ACCIDENTS THROUGH PHOTOGRAPHY

Chicago—(AP)—The Chicago police will try out photography to investigate automobile mishaps and study means of preventing them. Two squads of nine men each have been selected to take pictures of accident scenes, draw diagrams and inspect the physical surroundings to determine the cause and fix the blame.

W. J. UHLIEN DIES
Milwaukee—(AP)—William J. Uhlien, retired business man and financier, died at his home here today. Mr. Uhlien was the youngest brother of August Uhlien, many years head of the Schlitz Brewing company.

From 1920 to 1922, trade union membership in America decreased 19 per cent, and in Germany and France 33 per cent.

SHACKLING GOVERNMENT

A principle of representative government is involved in the city referendum election next Tuesday on whether the common council shall be limited by charter ordinance to a maximum appropriation of $3,000 a year to pay for band concerts. The important question in this election is not that of paying for band concerts or of supporting a band, but rather whether the people have so little confidence in the judgment of their elected representatives that they feel the need of hedging them with countless restrictions.

It must logically follow that if the council cannot be trusted in so minor a matter as paying for band concerts other charter ordinances should be enacted at once to limit its authority in more important matters.

Representative government as opposed to pure democracy, does not contemplate that the people as a whole, un-informed and often disinterested, shall conduct the ordinary affairs of government. It is a government by elected representatives, restricted only by such basic ordinances as will protect the people in their enjoyment of life and property, leaving to their judgment the manner in which government shall be operated.

Charter ordinances limiting the powers of the council in such relatively minor matters as paying for band concerts serve only to restrict the use of this judgment and place government at the mercy of every passing whim or imaginary exigency. They are a definite expression to the council that the people have no confidence in it, and the immediate result will be a wavering, indecisive government, afraid of its own shadow and always under the threat of more restriction.

There is a vast difference between expression of views or opinion on questions of public policy or interest and definitely crippling judgment by restrictive charter ordinance. One is always welcomed by the council, the other strikes at the root of representative government. The one is a guarantee of good government, the other is a shackle on progress and initiative.

Whether the appropriation for the support of the band shall be limited to $10,000 a year as fixed by the present council ordinance or to $3,000 as proposed in the charter ordinance is not the important issue in this referendum. The vital issue is whether the people will permit themselves to be so swayed by a temporary condition that they will permanently shackle their council. It is a question of whether Appleton is to have a government by elected representatives or by referendum. If the council cannot be trusted to exercise its judgment in so minor a matter as paying for band concerts it is high time that we either find new representatives or we change our form of government.

The referendum deserves to be decisively defeated. Charter ordinances of this nature have no place in our American system of government.

HUMAN SAFETY VALVE

The prolonged, acrimonious and unsettling row in the House of Representatives over the sales tax was unquestionably a direct reflection of widespread popular discontent over the continued depression.

That such a phrase as "soak the rich" should have become something of a slogan for one faction was almost inevitable; so, too, was the fact that one leader finally fell back on calling his opponents Bolsheviks. The whole business grew out of the sullen resentment and the aching desire for some sort of change which the depression has brought.

And yet, even though the spectacle and its connotations may be somewhat dismaying, it is an excellent testimonial to the strength and adaptability of the American system of popular government.

When any large section of the populace, in any nation, gets the feeling that things are going badly and that there are in the world crushing injustices which must be set right without delay, there are just two things it can do; it can tear up the cobblestones to make barricades, and indulge in anything from a simple riot to a genuine revolution, or it can egg on its elected representatives to raise a bit of Cain in the national legislature.

Where the second course of action is impossible, the first one is likely to be tried. But where it is easy to take the second course, the danger of extensive street fighting is so small that you can hardly see it with the naked eye.

In the United States the machinery of government, while it may be clumsy, is quite responsive to the will of the people. It enables them to take any sort of action they please without breaking things. In that way it acts as a fool-proof safety valve.

For about two years, now, things in the United States have been acutely uncomfortable for a great many people. Hunger and want have been more prevalent than at any time in decades. And what has been the outstanding result? A sudden, unexpected flurry in Congress about the form which the next tax law is to take.

Nothing could show more clearly how microscopic the danger of real violence in the United States is.

SPEARS AT WISCONSIN

Hope has hung its head for a long time around the Wisconsin University football squad, but the selection of Dr. C. W. Spears, because of his recognized ability and success in athletics, will tend to raise confidence among the wearers of the cardinal and their thousands of supporters.

A football coach is becoming subject to much the same conditions that make and unmake rulers, the public wants prosperity in football scores, and yet behind all the criticism of losing coaches there is some merit.

The losing crowd is often unfair and yet senses too a lack of those intangible things that enter into every sporting contest, things that may fairly be foreseen, and when not provided for result in the discouragement of continual defeat.

When, year after year, a team goes racing down a field only to be held on the one yard line, or lacks the stamina to do its share of similar holding, and has plenty of resources in the way of speed and brawn, the crowd draws the inference that the coach is responsible for the team's inability to click on to victory, either in general training or the failure to select proper field generalship.

With a gross attendance of about 10,000, football enthusiasts refuse to accept excuses for so many years of failure to make a proper showing at Madison.

At Minnesota Dr. Spears developed formidable teams. He stressed big tackles and fine coordinated line play. He originated some of the most devastating plays unleashed in the Big Ten. Dr. Spears need not win championships to make a success of his career at Madison, but he must produce fighting organizations that never give up, and that convince the tens of thousands who pay out their shekels to see the contests that Wisconsin's youth has given a good account of itself.

Opinions Of Others

THE POSITION OF AMERICAN LABOR
No one doubts that the will of the people to contribute to the necessities of those who find themselves out of work is a good motive. That this best can be done by making the cost a public obligation so that the burden may be equalized, also may be accepted in principle.

Doubtless promoted by such considerations, Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, in a New York radio address set forth some very sane principles. Discussing various proposals for relief of unemployment, Mr. Woll was asked a Federal system of doles. No government, however strong, he declared, could stand the strain of paying out money without receiving any returns.

"If our visionaries say that the whole tax levy should be upon the very rich," he continued, "I respond that even the heaviest tax possible upon the rich would merely postpone for a brief time the inevitable reckoning. In national policy, it matters little whether the bottom is reached one year or the next. Wrong policies can not continue forever. The balance must be struck in time. The cure for unemployment lies not in keeping men without work, but in finding ways for men to work and earn incomes and produce commodities."

It is gratifying to have the position of American labor so sanely stated.—Devon News.

DARING

They're not paying fancy money for the ordinary labor.
They are cutting down the wages for the work that all can do.
Now the rate is down for old tasks.
But they're paying well for bold tasks.
And a youth will be rewarded for what's difficult and new.

There seems little in the future for the common order taker,
And but little for the fellow who says "Tell me what to do."
But the youngster with ambition
Who'll defy old-time tradition,
Will find fame and fortune waiting when he works his problem through.

Oh, the ruts of life are crowded with a squirming mass of workers,
But there's room afar aplenty for the daring pioneers.
And the brave and the undaunted
Who will find the new things wanted,
Will be welcomed by the Nation and be honored down the years.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Friday, April 3, 1907

If the common council were to head the request of a considerable number of property owners on College-ave. that thoroughfare was to be paved during the coming season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Rogers had returned from a brief visit with friends at Green Bay.

The Misses Flossie Hanson and Fannie Sibley were spending a few days at Neenah as the guests of friends.

Charles Vinal and family had moved into their new home on Law-st between College-ave and Washington-st.

Edward Lutz, a member of the ice firm of Lutz Brothers, was making preparations to remove his household effects to the Lutz farm on the Lake road where he intended to reside permanently.

Appleton firemen were to be hosts the following Tuesday evening at an informal dinner and house warming, and members of the council, together with newspaper men, were to be guests.

TEN YEARS AGO
Friday, March 31, 1922

The Irish Free State came into being that day. King George gave his royal assent to the bill creating the free state. The house of lords approved the action of the house of commons in ratifying the peace treaty signed at Downing street by Irish envoys and the government, and the establishment of Ireland as a free state within the British commonwealth was formally effected.

YELLOW FOODS FOR VITAMINA

From animal experimentation we infer that an adequate quantity of Vitamin A may help to keep us immune to infections in general and respiratory infections in particular. We may be wrong about this. It will take many years patient observation of persons subsisting on various diets to determine whether the inference is applicable to man.

Meat while, no harm in seeing to it that everybody, particularly the children, gets enough Vitamin A.

Yellow foods seem to be the best sources of this vitamin. It was the first found in butter fat, then in egg yolk and then in cod liver oil. Of course whole milk and cream contain it, but butter is the richest of the three. Ripe banana, orange, orange juice contain it. Sweet potatoes and carrots contain Vitamin A.

While white potatoes and red or white tubers or roots contain little or none. Yellow corn or yellow meal contain it; white corn meal does not. Vitamin A is abundant in liver, kidney, sweetbread, but only sparingly found in lean meats or in the body fats of animals. It is not found in appreciable quantity in olive oil, cottonseed oil, coconut oil, peanut oil or other vegetable oil. The green relishes—spinach, watercress, lettuce, beet tops, turnip tops, celery leaves, radish tops, and raw cabbage are all excellent sources of Vitamin A. So are the green onion tops.

This vitamin is destroyed by oxidation. Therefore you cannot get enough of it in a diet made up largely of preserved, dried, canned or salted foods. Storage permits slow oxidation. Prolonged heating in a vessel which gives access to the air destroys the Vitamin A in the food, but in ordinary cooking the Vitamin is not entirely destroyed, and in canning by vacuum process it is not destroyed.

Formerly Vitamin A was confused with Vitamin D. The nutrition experts concluded that two separate substances were concerned, and they therefore postulated two where only one had previously purported to exist.

It is all very confusing, this vitamin business. Some of the experts have insisted that there are six or seven vitamins demanding recognition, whereas it is all we ordinary doctors can do to conceive three or four.

Besides keeping one more or less immune against respiratory infections, Vitamin A apparently serves to prevent ophthalmia, dry sore eyes and night-blindness, and some nutrition experts suspect it may help to prevent stone in the kidney or bladder.

There is a great deal more hokum than truth propagates concerning the vitamins, and one must be on guard against the gross misinformation so cheerfully provided for the public. For example, the claim made by some about the vitamin value of milk is absurd. The vitamin value of milk is pasteurized. The very purest fresh milk to be had anywhere is only a mediocre or an inadequate source of any of the known vitamins, even for an infant.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Answer—The correspondent refers to instructions for breaking the constipation or phlegm habit. Glad to mail instructions free to any correspondent who tells me he or she has the habit (this is not a treatment or cure for anything) and incloses stamped envelope bearing the return address.

Diathermy Extirpation of Tonsils
Do you recommend the electrical method for removing a child's tonsils. Our son, aged 6... (Mrs. N. H. V.)

Answer—The diathermy method (electro-coagulation) is preferable in any case. I think, the few physicians are able to apply it in the cases of children so young. If the child is tractable and the physician skilled in managing children, the method may prove a great success.

Teaching A Child

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE Tynmites watched the town folks run up to them. "Gee, this will be fun," cried Windy. "I hope all these tots have pennies they can spend. They know what this is all about. We'll sell a lot of things, no doubt. No wonder Mister Bakerman tells us he is their friend."

Then, when the bakery wagon stopped, out to the ground the Tynmites hopped. "Don't be impatient, youngsters," shouted Scouty, with a grin. "We have enough for all of you. If you'll do what we tell you to, we all will have a fine time. Are you ready to begin?"

One of the wee tots cried, "You bet! Some nice cupcakes we want to get." Then Scouty, to the other Tynmites, said, "Bring all the baskets out. Be sure that they are filled up high with good things, so the tots can buy."

This pleased the tots. They all joined in a very merry shout. Kind Copsy was the first to sell some of the goods. How he could yell! "Nice pies and cakes!" he shouted. "They are from the baker's store. I'll sell you all that you can eat and you will find they are a treat. Buy all you can and eat until you can't eat any more."

Then Duncy said, "I've doughnuts, round. The best that ever you have found. A penny each. I sell them for. How many would you like?" "A half a dozen," said one tot. "Oh, my," cried Duncy, "that's a lot! But, here they are. You surely must be quite a hungry tike."

Course Windy also walked around and in a little while he found a lad whose mother sent him down to get ten loaves of bread. "I won't eat all of it myself. My mom will put it on the shelf and serve it to my father, too," the little youngster said. (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

(The Tynmites arrive back at the baker's in the next story.)

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — The wary, quick-tongued senator from Virginia — Carter Glass — has been in the business of politics for a long time.

He has held down important posts during his political career, ranging from a seat in the Virginia state senate to a place in the official family of the President of the United States.

But the things he points to with the most pride in his career in politics is what he terms his non-partisan method of approaching legislative matters.

In the senate, not so long ago, he broke what he considered one of his most cherished records, covering a period of 30 years, by making a partisan speech. Secretary Hyde of the Department of Agriculture so provoked him that he was moved to reply to him on the floor of the Senate.

Always Independent
This independence of Glass is always on the surface. It is likely to crop up at any time.

The other day for example, it was noted around Washington that one of the things "Uncle Andy" Mellon would do upon his arrival at the Court of St. James would be to reopen negotiations on the war debt situation with a view to readjusting the contracts now in force.

The report alarmed certain senators and the matter was brought up on the senate floor.

Democratic criticism was becoming so severe that Senator Reed broke in with the statement that he had been authorized by the White House to say that there was no foundation whatever to such a report.

"It is absolutely and unqualifiedly untrue," Reed shouted. "I am authorized to make such a statement by the President."

Glass speaks
Glass sat calmly by during all the discussion. Toward the close, he stood up and drawled:

"I myself can very easily conceive that circumstances may arise, if they have not already arisen, which would make it imperative to our own practical interest to readjust this indebtedness."

Reed, an ardent foe of war debt cancellation, appeared as if he had not heard Glass' words correctly. So did some of his Democratic brethren.

"The senator loses me," said Reed.

"I do not lose myself at all," replied Glass.

And he hadn't. The senator from Virginia has been doing things like that for 30 years.

And he is proud of the fact.

Those who said the disarmament conference would be unable to agree on anything were dead wrong. The delegates have already agreed to a two-weeks' vacation.

Farmers Must Help Themselves

Editor Post-Crescent—Thanks be to the Post-Crescent for allowing me to express his opinion. I have been watching the movement of the so-called Wisconsin Dairy Union which is in progress, as have many more of you, and I am greatly interested. I sincerely believe it should be given the support of every single farmer in the state of Wisconsin if there is any business in us at all. I being a farmer myself know what it is to scratch and pinch to make ends meet and if there is one mismove made you cannot make them meet then. As we all know, there have been many farms foreclosed or taken away in the past two years and if this keeps on another year these same farmers will have a lot of complaints.

To tell the truth about it one should not howl about times being hard and so on etc., but we should encourage ourselves by hoping for the best to come. That's alright, but all the time it's a pretty hard thing to do. We hear of so many of those hokus-pokus sign believers saying prosperity is just around the corner but I think it's a mighty big corner. If any of you have ever read history you will find that our forefathers fought hard battles so that the generations to come might live and I think we will have to do the same thing. I don't believe there was or ever will be a more fit time for the farmers to organize than there is right now, to pull himself out of the mud. If the farmer dies they all have to die rich or poor. We are in the mud now up to our ears and we are going under if we don't do something mighty soon. As Mr. Leach says, we don't aim to raise the price of the milk. He already is paying plenty but we want our fair share that lies between the producer and the consumer which is being taken away from us. The consumer is paying practically the same price for his milk today when we are getting 75 cents per cwt. as he did when we received $3.00 per cwt. What's wrong? Who is getting the extra money? I'm very sure that producer isn't. How about it? Are we going to wait at home and grumble and wait for relief to come blowing in with the next snow storm or something of that sort?

True enough we have plenty of knockers no matter what we do but if every farmer felt about the situation as I do, this thing would be put over in less than one month, and then every knock would be a boot then pull a dozen together and see what difficulties there would be in breaking them. Don't let the big concerns come in and take you away from your small country factory by paying you a few cents more in the start. That only lasts for a short time and then they slack down and when your small factory is gone its going to be just too bad. This should entice the cheese maker then work with his farmers and help them pull their load. After the farmer is gone they can't live off from the shingles of their house. They have to have the farmers.

A town of Center farmer

GERMANS MASS FOR ATTACK

On April 1, 1918, German troops, stopped in the great drive, were reported massing on the western side of the salient formed in the Allied lines for a blow at Amiens and the Channel ports.

French and British troops, weary from 10 days of terrific combat, took advantage of the slight lull in operations to fortify and improve their positions.

German attacks on Grives were repulsed by the French. Several new French divisions were within the battle zone and much of the strain on Allied positions had been relieved.

British troops in Palestine continued their offensive and announced the capture of villages near Aleppo. Turkish resistance was reported weakening.

German liner Celtic was torpedoed off the Irish coast, but was able to make port successfully.

Paris was bombarded by the long-range German gun. Casualties were not announced.

SEE INCREASE IN ACREAGE OF FEED AND GRAIN CROPS

Smaller Acreage of Cash Crops Expected to Be Planted in State

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin Crop and Livestock Reporter says that Wisconsin farmers plan to grow greatly increased acreages of all of the grain and feed crops this year with the exception of hay. Much smaller acreages of some of the cash crops and hay are planned.

According to information from Wisconsin crop reporters, there is a general shift in acreages from cash crops to the more important feed crops and grains. This is partly the result of the poor production of feed crops last year and in part due to the fact that the cash crops last year did not make very satisfactory returns.

As a result of the poor production last year supplies of grain and hay are very low throughout the state. In addition to this, the livestock population is very large, which brings about an unusual need for feed crops. Since most crops did not do very well last year it is only natural that some of them will be replaced by crops intended for livestock feeding.

Unfortunately the dry year of 1931 was quite destructive to the new seedlings, and as a result, about half of the clover and grass sown in the spring of 1931 was lost. The hay acreage for 1932 will have in it more than the usual proportion of old meadows. Some attempts will be made to grow emergency hay crops in place of the usual clovers and grasses, but these can only replace the regular hay crops to a limited extent.

Sharp increases are planned for corn, oats and barley. Wisconsin farmers expect to increase barley acreage seven per cent, their corn acreage three per cent, their oats acreage two per cent and their spring wheat, which is not very important in this state, about ten per cent.

Corn, oats and barley are the important feed crops in Wisconsin and their state-wide as well as nationwide expansion indicates rather clearly that farmers are planning to depend more upon the livestock industry in 1932 than before.

There will be a nationwide decline in tobacco acreage this year. Wisconsin crop reporters indicate that the reduction in this state will be about 15 per cent and for the United States the reporters indicate a decrease of 22.6 per cent.

Sharp changes are also indicated in the acreage of some of the minor crops. Canning peas which are especially important in Wisconsin will show a sharp decrease this year. Reports from a number of canners indicate a decrease of about 25 per cent in acreage from last year's plantings in this state.

Flax while showing a little change in Wisconsin will probably increase materially for the country as a whole.

Soy beans in Wisconsin will show a large increase the crop being doubtless intended mostly as an emergency hay.

Cabbage acreage for the United States as reported will probably be about 134,150 acres as compared with a total of 146,010 the estimate for last year. The intentions-to-plant reports on onions indicate an acreage of 37,310 as compared with 76,630 acres the estimate for last year.

COMPARE REPORTS FOR CONVENIENCE OF STOCKHOLDERS

System Also Helps to Enlighten Those Interested in Firm

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)

New York—This is the season in which the corporation annual report makes its appearance. It is always worth reading by those who have any interest in the securities concerned, actual or prospective, but annual reports differ greatly in the amount and manner of the information they present.

The first essential of an adequate report is of course detailed financial statements. To be of service they should be comparative, that is the results of the year just closed should be placed along side of the previous year. Many corporations omit this data. It may be obtained by reference to financial manuals but they are not always available and without such a comparison the deductions are not enlightening.

Then reports should be supplied within a reasonable time after the close of the fiscal year. Many corporations fall in this respect also. It is said in defense that some of them have such large and wide spread connections that the figures cannot be assembled promptly and perhaps that is true in some instances but whenever there is delay of this kind there ought to be included in the text of the report some general statement as to the company's operations during the period between the year's end and the date of the report.

It is desirable that the corporation should review in more or less detail the situation in and the outlook for the industry concerned. Most reports do attempt something of this kind. What the shareholder wants is not optimism or pessimism but a statement of facts. There should be no attempt to color the picture. It may be justifiable for outsiders to indulge in polyantha propaganda with regard to general industry but the partners in the business want to know where they stand. As all Wall Street knows, there are corporation executives who are temperamentally hopeful and there are those of the other kind. Allowance has to be made for individual differences but an annual report is not designed primarily to encourage or discourage stockholders but to enlighten them.

THIRD OF STATE'S FOREIGN BORN OF GERMAN PARENTAGE

Scandinavian Language Ranks Second, Census Statistics Show

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—More than one-third of all the foreign-born in Wisconsin have German as their mother tongue 1930 census statistics made public Thursday reveal.

Of the 356,213 foreign-born in Wisconsin, 162,344 learned German as their native tongue.

Scandinavian followed German, with 61,171 Badgers learning the Scandinavian languages at their mothers' knees. Polish was third with 49,558 and English and Celtic, which led in the country as a whole with 23 per cent of all the foreign-born, was fourth in Wisconsin with 27,785.

The mother tongues of other foreign-born Badgers were as follows: Dutch, 6,154; Italian, 12,619; French, 6,151; Spanish, 323; Portuguese, 31; Czech, 11,524; Greek, 2,922; Slovak, 6,295; Russian, 4,091; Lithuanian, 3,549; Yiddish, 9,062; Magyar, 4,239; and Finnish, 4,933.

Of the 2,363,619 persons born in Wisconsin and still living in the United States 697,595 or 24.4 per cent have moved from Wisconsin to other states; while 2,166,114 were still living in Wisconsin when the 1930 census was taken.

Of the 2,544,552 native-born persons living in Wisconsin, 378,438 or 14.9 per cent were born in other states. Thus Wisconsin has lost 319,047 citizens by interstate migration. Ohio and Michigan are the only states in the east north central group which have gained by interstate migration, Indiana and Illinois, like Wisconsin, losing.

Wisconsin, however, gained in Negro population through interstate migration. Of the 3,226 Negroes born in Wisconsin, 1,732 still live in their native state and only 1,534 or 47 per cent have gone to other states to live; while of the total number of Negroes in the state, 10,606, some 8,814 or 83.7 per cent were born in other states. This is a gain of 1,340 through interstate migration.

Astrological tendencies for April 2nd: Financially favorable for the more prosperous to whom sound investments will be proffered. To those for whom conditions are unsettled, a change is foreseen. Family worries through affairs of the younger members. A propitious time for correspondence, especially business letters.

The child born on this April 2nd will be shy, yet self-possessed. It will have a great deal of latent ability, which will not blossom until almost maturity. It will be naturally high principled, honest, considerate, dependable, ambitious, energetic.

How to Stop RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Rheumatic Poisons from Joints—Muscles. EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

Poisons settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till these dangerous poisons are driven out of your system. External medicines and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine now sold by all druggists; that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps expel through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is one rheumatic remedy guaranteed by Schilz Bros. to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness and swelling and completely stop your rheumatic agony, or nothing to pay.

Large Crowd Will Hear Miss Ashmun

BECAUSE of the exceptionally large crowd expected to hear Miss Margaret Ashmun, noted author of New York, members of the American Association of University Women are asked to make reservations for themselves and their guests for the meeting Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Pythian hall. Senior girls of Appleton high school and Lawrence college, as well as girls who have received the scholarship award granted annually by the local chapter will be guests of the association at this meeting.

Miss Ashmun, who is spending the winter with her parents in the village of Rural, Wis., has written 22 books, among them the well-known Isabel Carleton series for girls. She will discuss her work and experiences in the literary field.

The rank of Page was conferred at the meeting of Knights of Pythias Thursday night at Castle hall. Forty members were present. Robert Neller put on a variety act, and a variety show was played. L. M. Schuler reported on the fraternal day committee, and Clarence Zelle reported on Past Chancellors' night which will be observed April 14.

The Relatives club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Hoffman, 1523 N. Appleton. Prizes at scholastic were won by Mrs. Robert M. Schuler and Mrs. John J. Hoffman. Mrs. Fred Hoffman, Jr. The club will meet the latter part of April with Mrs. Roy Walker, State-st.

Miss Virginia Westphal, Winnebago-st., entertained the T. N. T. Bridge club Thursday night at her home. Prizes were won by Miss Lila Haddad, Miss Emma Bauman. The club will meet next Thursday with Miss Bauman, N. Fair-st.

Mrs. Carl Maunthe, Marion, entertained the Happy Eight club at a 6 o'clock dinner Thursday night at her home. Prizes at five hundred were won by Miss Margaret Maunthe and Mrs. George Ties. The club will meet in two weeks with Miss Maunthe, 1501 S. Madison-st.

Mrs. Harry Leith, 421 E. Brewster-st., entertained her bridge club Thursday night at her home. Prizes were won by Miss Ethel Bloomer and Miss Myrtle Molberg. The next meeting will be next Thursday at Miss Molberg's home, Atlantic-st.

COLLEGE CHORUS SHOWS FINISH IN CHAPEL CONCERT

Singing a program of unusual distinction with a finish equal to that of any organization of its kind, the Lawrence A. Cappella choir, directed by Dean Carl J. Waterman, appeared in concert last evening at the Lawrence Memorial chapel.

The first group offered by the choir was composed of songs representative of the Christian festivals of Christmas and Easter, with the exception of the opening number, "An Ode to Music" by Dudley Buck. From the standpoint of dramatic interpretation, this group, with its unlimited possibilities for achieving climaxes, was especially well handled by the choir.

For variety and warmth of tone color, "O Holy Lord" by Dett was a bright spot in the evening's performance. This number, followed by three Russian choruses of sacred nature, comprised the second group. Throughout this entire section of the concert strong contrasts and colorful chord progressions were evident. From the technical standpoint, these selections were without a doubt the most difficult, and their adequate interpretation therefore is more commendable.

For the closing group Dean Waterman had arranged four delightful songs which were sung with a delicacy of touch that is remarkable when achieved by an ensemble group of this size.

Hazel Gioe, Carl Nicholas, and Marshall Hulbert, sang the incidental solos in the evening's performance.

TWO STUDENTS ARE HONORED BY SORORITY

Alice Cavert, Appleton, and Lucille Ley, Green Bay, were honored at a formal banquet held Thursday evening at Conway hotel by the local chapter of Beta Phi Alpha, national social sorority. The banquet was given in honor of the initiation of Miss Cavert and the pledging of Miss Ley. Toasts were given by Miss Stip, Appleton, president of the group, and Ruth Brandt, Appleton, and responses were given by the guests of honor, Miss Cavert and Miss Ley.

HITLER PLANS TO MAKE WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN

Munich (AP)—One minute after the German Easter political trials ends next Sunday at noon Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, who trailed President von Hindenburg in last month's first presidential election, expects to make his first speech in the run-off election campaign.

National Socialist headquarters have announced that the second Hitler campaign will be of the whirlwind type.

Blames Parents

A father and a stepmother are being held at Groversville, N. M., on charges of torturing seven-year-old Barbara Marie Trowbridge, above, with hot stove poker. The girl, who weighed only 35 pounds when she told of her plight, said that Mrs. Anna Smith pressed the poker across the bottom of her foot while her father looked on. She also charged her father with beating her with a strap and then applying kerosene to the burns and welts to intensify the pain.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF CHURCH TO OFFER REVIEW

Final preparations have been made for the "Junior Review" which will be presented Sunday afternoon and evening at Sacred Heart hall. The entertainment is being put on by the young people of the parish under the auspices of the Young Ladies' sodality. Music will be provided by John Loessel and his orchestra.

The clown chorus will include Bernice Debyl, Rose Hearden, Elsie Koller, Dorothy Kraft, Jean Bestler, Irene DeWendt, Eunice Werner and Irene Goss. "Alabamy Cradle Song" will be sung by Fred De Guire and "Dinah" will be given by Goldine Bauer and Vivian De Guire.

A three-act comedy, "Smilin' Thru" will be presented by the following: Irene Wilz, Catherine Harzheim, Helen Childs, Alice Vanderheiden, Janet and Louise Knight, Mildred Bohlehn, Audrey Whydowski and Joan DeWendt. "Home" will be sung by Lucille Hoolihan, Mary Foss, Amelia Goehler and Vivian DeGuire. Blanche Van Aernam will present a tap dance, Maurice Jacobs will give a monolog, and James Laux will play a clarinet solo.

Singers in the Gypsy number will include Georgina Parsons, Lucille Hoolihan, Vivian de Guire, Mary Foss, Amelia Goehler, Sophian Meier, Esther Vanderlinden, Florence Thiel, Lillian Starinaga, Dorothy Kraft, Marie Schmidt, Goldine Bauer, Clem De Young, Walter Weber, Floyd Morris, Jerome Knabenbauer, John Casper, John Driessen and Fred De Guire. Lillian Sternhagen will be the Gypsy dancer.

Cecilia Wilz is the director, Leona Jacobs is business manager, and Peter Jacobs has charge of music for the dances and songs.

CANDIDATES TO TALK AT LEAGUE MEETING

Candidates for various city offices in the election next Tuesday will be guest speakers at a meeting of the First Ward Civic league at Edison school at 7:30 Friday evening. Speakers will be Mayor John Goodland Jr., and Albert C. Rule, candidates for mayor; Frank J. Johnston and Alfred C. Bosser, who oppose each other for city attorney; George Peotter and Elmer Scott, candidates for city assessor; Joseph Koz, candidate for city treasurer; and other office seekers.

The league also will discuss the bond referendum and the $3,000 appropriation for city playgrounds. The program will open with a concert by Appleton high school band under direction of Prof. E. C. Moore. After the concert the J. T. Reeve circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, will present a flag to the band. The presentation is to be made by Miss Anna Sullivan.

NEW REVOLT LOOMS ON MANCHURIAN BOUNDARY

Tokio (AP)—Hostile forces in the Nungun district of Manchuria were inactive today but rebellion against the regime of Henry Pu-Yi flared menacingly in the Chienloa district on the Kirin-Korea border.

Dispatches from that area reported that 1,500 Chinese insurgents under Wang Teh-Lin had defeated the Kirin provincial troops advancing on Pail Teao-Kou, 35 miles east of Tuncha where the Japanese consular police were preparing to defend the Japanese branch of the consulate in which many Japanese have taken refuge.

The Rango (Japanese) News agency correspondent at Changchun reported that the Japanese army and its Chinese allies was preparing for a general offensive in the Nungun district beginning April 2 in an effort to destroy the rebel army.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF CHURCH IN ONE-ACT PLAY

About 250 persons witnessed the performance of "Clue," a one-act play given by the young people of First Reformed church Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the old church, corner of Lave and Hancock-sts.

The cast included Mr. Grossmeyer, Wilmer Werner; Mrs. Grossmeyer, Tillie Jahn; Tilly, Ruth Meyer; maid, Eva Engel; Lena Fisher, Helen Meyer; reporter, Raymond Herzog; Mr. Markle, from Chicago, Charles Trautman.

Five acts of vaudeville were presented including a xylophone solo by Wilmer Werner, a trombone and xylophone duet by Norbert Franz and Wilmer Werner, a dance by Betsy Rosenbohm, Hawaiian guitar selections by Merlin Pitt, and accordion solos by Pat Smith. Merlin Pitt directed the play.

Mrs. Franzke Presides At Group Meet

MRS. J. J. FRANZKE presided at the meeting of the Women's Missionary society of Emmanuel Evangelical church Thursday afternoon at the church. Mrs. Frank Selbigelch discussed Home Conditions in Sudan, and Mrs. S. J. Sorenson presented The Challenge Accepted. Evangelicals at Work in the Church Schools and Treatment of the Sick was given by Mrs. Harry Steffen, and Mrs. Ray Salberich talked on Native Christian at Work. Mrs. John Trautman read a leaflet, "In Satan's Domain."

Mrs. Henry Zorn and Mrs. Franzke took charge of the Scripture and prayer, and Mrs. Trautman and Mrs. Amos Greb sang "Speed Away." Quarterly roll call was taken. Forty members were present.

The next meeting will be a joint session with the Young People's Missionary Circle the evening of April 27.

The crew of the San Cristobal of the Methodist Social Union met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Paul Stevens, 522 S. State-st. Plans were made for a luncheon on April 15 in the Social Union room of the church. The committee in charge includes Miss Ida Hopkins, Mrs. John Engel, Mrs. W. Sauerlich, Mrs. C. Trautman, and Mrs. Mel Buxton. The latter is captain of the crew. A business meeting will follow the luncheon.

A bake sale, sponsored by Brokaw Memorial church at Kaukauna, will begin at 1 o'clock Saturday at the Sweet shop on the north side and Brier grocery on the south side of the city.

Circle B of First English Lutheran church met Thursday night at the home of Mrs. L. J. Kaufman, 1115 N. Durkee-st. Rook was played at four tables. The next meeting will be April 13 with Mrs. B. C. Koepke, 902 N. Division-st.

Christian Endeavor society of Memorial Presbyterian church will meet at 6:30 Sunday night at the church. Miss Meredith Bandy will be the leader.

PARTIES

A number of relatives and friends surprised Mrs. Charles Konesnik, Superior-st., Tuesday evening in honor of her birthday anniversary. The guests included Mrs. Mary Kunzman and son, Alvin, Mrs. Alma Huth and children, Miss Clara Waters, Miss Pearl Winters, Frank Krueger, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Winters and son, Bobby, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Winters, Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Witthuhn and family, Appleton.

Our Gang club met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Lillian Hoh, 331 E. Spring-st. Dice and dancing furnished the entertainment. Prizes were won by Mrs. Mildred Burke, Miss Norma (Tanner) Miss Rose Kohl and Mrs. Dorothy Piette. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mildred Burke, W. Garfield-st. in April.

The date for the benefit card party to be sponsored by Women's Catholic Order of Foresters has been changed from April 5 to Monday, April 18, at Catholic home. Mrs. Nell Lippert is chairman and Mrs. Regina Glaschen assistant chairman of the event. The committee includes members whose names begin with the letters B, C, D, E, F, G, and H.

Pivot and progressive bridge, schafkopf, five hundred rummy, dice and cinch will be played at the American Legion Auxiliary benefit card party next Tuesday night at Elk hall. Arrangements have been made to have election returns announced at Elk hall during the party.

Mrs. Johanna Christi and Louis Vanderlois won the prizes at schafkopf at the card party given by Ladies Aid society of St. Joseph's church Thursday afternoon at the parish hall. Mrs. Joseph Loev won the pumpeack prize. Twelve tables were in play. There will be an open benefit card party next Sunday night at the parish hall.

Borrowing Habit Bad For Child

BY ANGELO PATRI
I don't like to see children borrowing one another's belongings. It is far better for them to get along with what they have. Children live in the present moment. It is very difficult for us to get them to see ahead a little way. Paying back what they borrow always comes hard. They should not be permitted to borrow unless they are definitely informed about the payment and its terms. Slackness in borrowing and returning softens character to the danger point.

"Where did you get that ruler, Mark?"

"O, that's Dick's. I borrowed it from him to make my map tonight. I'll give it back to him in the morning."

"See that you do. And don't borrow it again. You keep me busy checking up on the things you borrow and forget to return. I don't like to have Mrs. Simms calling me on the phone to tell me that you have Chester's book or skates or whatnot. Use your own things."

"I do but I haven't any what can I do?"

"You have everything you need and what you haven't got you can do without."

"Yes, and have everybody laughing at me because I haven't a good map. How can I rule lines if I haven't a steel ruler?"

"Lines were ruled perfectly long before there was a steel ruler made. You'd better use your head instead of your friend's things and you'll do better work and be a finer sort of person."

"O yeh."

"Now that settles it. Now I know that you're getting off the track altogether. From now on you use what you have or you do without. When you're through with that map you're going to gather everything you have that has been borrowed, you're going to return them, and you're not going to borrow another thing, or I'll know the reason why. I've made up my mind. This stops."

Three cheers. It should have stopped when it began. A child ought to be taught to use his intelligence rather than his neighbor's goods and he will have more chance of owning what he needs in the years to come. Once a borrower, always a borrower, and an unhappy misfit at that.

Half the borrowing is useless. It is usually nothing more than a social gesture. It makes the child feel friendly toward the world when he asks for the use of something and gets it. He feels richer for the possession, even though it is not permanent. There lurks the evil, perhaps unconsciously.

Give the children the necessary tools and playthings. They are few and simple. Hold them to strict account for their use. Frown on borrowing. Insist that only stern necessity permits it and then it must be returned with all speed and promptness. Borrowing isn't a good habit.

PHILADELPHIA "CLUE" CENTER IN KIDNAPING

Hopewell, N. J. (AP)—It was Philadelphia's turn today to become the "clue" centre in the Lindbergh kidnaping mystery.

Reports flew that Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., kidnaped a month ago tonight, might be found in or near that city. Police scoffed. Hundreds of other tips of similar nature have proved valueless.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, said "there has been no investigation directly or indirectly of the report the baby was held in or near Philadelphia."

Morton Bernstein, head of a private detective agency in New York, came here last night with one of his operatives, Samuel Krasnow, and visited the Lindbergh mansion.

A spokesman for their agency said two mysterious strangers had come to the office and warned them to watch a certain Philadelphia house the night of March 31.

"A blond woman and a man will enter the house. If you will then crash the door, you may then find the Lindbergh baby," the strangers said.

Burnstein and Krasnow left last night for Philadelphia planning to watch the house.

INTERNAL STRIFE GROWING KEENER IN DELEGATE RACE

Roosevelt Backers Abandon Their Earlier Conciliatory Attitude

BY BYRON PRICE
Washington (AP)—The pains of internal strife are growing appreciably keener for both of the parties as presidential politics crosses the threshold of April.

In three important respects, the past week has contributed significantly to the rift from the past.

Abandoning the conciliatory demeanor of earlier weeks, the supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt have begun to press mercilessly toward consummation of his campaign for the Democratic nomination.

The Republican opponents of President Hoover have laid down a policy of standing aside for the present, giving him a renomination without substantial opposition, and then if an opportunity presents itself, leading a bolt from the ticket.

In both parties there has developed a growing realization of the deadly earnestness of the prohibition organizations in their threats to withdraw support from any candidate who accepts a moist plank.

All of these developments further confirm forecasts of a campaign of great bitterness, in which party lines may come to mean very little. Talk of a third party and even a fourth party has been revived, and although such talk usually comes to nothing in the end, the politicians are listening and watching.

Roosevelt Gains
The Roosevelt drive captured two more states during the week, Iowa and Maine. A last-minute decision to press for instructions in the closely-divided Maine convention caused much surprise. Evidently the Roosevelt leaders, encouraged by a succession of victories and aware of the driving determination of the stop Roosevelt movement, now are prepared to force ahead even at the expense of making some enemies.

The New York governor now has a definite pledge of 123 delegates. He needs 770 for the nomination. He has a fair assurance of about 500 for the first ballot, and a chance for many more, but there are some 300 out of the total of 1154 which are sure to go elsewhere. Missouri's 36 were instructed during the week for James A. Reed. New York's 94, which Tammany Leader John F. Curry expects to control under the unit rule, are to remain pledged for the present.

A situation may very well develop where the final decision will rest in the hands of five or six leaders, controlling such delegations as those of New York, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, and Missouri.

Several developments during the past few days have focused interest on the Republican insurgents.

Refuse to Enter
Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania declined to enter the Oregon primary. When the time limit arrived Tuesday night, Senator Hiram W. Johnson had no delegates entered in his name in his home state of California. Thus, apparently one of the much discussed candidacies of Johnson and Pinchot.

Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, after making no campaign against President Hoover in that state, announced that unless conditions changed he could not support the president for reelection. Senator Bronson Cutting, at a New Mexico convention which refused to instruct for Hoover, said he would support the party as long as he could successfully could.

President Hoover now has pledged to him 111 of the 122 Republican delegates thus far selected. No one disputes his renomination and apparently no outstanding leader is trying to prevent it. The discussions of the opposition have reverted to the question of what to do after the nomination is made.

The threat of a bolt from any non-prohibition candidate has been repeated to both parties by one after another of the dry societies. It has been repeated with particular emphasis to the Republicans, who had the support of these organizations four years ago, and who are being petitioned to recommend a referendum this year. It has begun to be impressive.

If a double bolt really should develop, on prohibition, and on general issues, an effort might be made to get all of the bolters together in a single third party under the leadership of some such outstanding dry as Senator George Norris of Nebraska.

That is being suggested, but it deals with too nebulous a set of suppositions to receive serious consideration just now.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

"A M I fired?" Ruth's three words hung in the room. Dr. Raynor shifted a little as he leaned against the door. Curiously Ruth remembered that he had not spoken since he entered the room. He had come to see the fun, perhaps. She wondered just why he was present. But it didn't matter now. Nothing mattered. He was gone from her forever. And now her job was going, too. She felt as though she were tumbling down a steep hill, faster and faster and faster. After a while the hill would open and she would slip into a great dark hole. She was afraid, then, that there wouldn't be a hole down which she could go. That she would have to pick herself up and climb to the top again.

And she couldn't. She was too tired. The room was disappearing. But she couldn't faint. Not now. Nurses were supposed to be cool, practical, efficient, upset by nothing. If she let herself go, in front of her, she would have something else to her discredit.

He spoke, her voice stronger than she thought it would be.

"I'm fired, am I not?"

"No . . . not if you will explain this last accusation. Nothing would have been said. But the rumor has spread. One or two parents of school children have objected."

"I see."

She did. She saw exactly how the mothers of the children had powdered their noses, arranged their hats and gone to the school offices to plead sweetly for their children's welfare.

She didn't censure them. In their places she would have done exactly the same thing, she told herself.

"You would like my resignation, wouldn't you?" she asked them.

"No, we don't want it. Your work is excellent. Thank again."

"I can't talk. I'll resign right now."

"Wait a minute." So Joe Raynor was going to speak. At last, she thought. "You can't do that. Ruth plays fair, fairer than anybody I know. She's shielding someone. I'll bank on that." His voice was strong, steady, determined.

"Thank you, Joe." She wondered what he would say if she should tell him that she was shielding the girl he wanted to marry.

"Tell the truth, Ruth," Joe pleaded. Then, as an afterthought, he added, "I was at your home the night the . . . the investigating committee called. That's why I'm along today. Sally asked me to come."

"It was mighty nice of her," the other man said. "You have a very loyal, splendid sister, Miss Bradley. Think things over, and let us know in a day or two, won't you?"

Ruth went back to the room that she used for a local clinic. She put on her hat and coat. She powdered her nose. Automatically, because it was the thing one usually did after one's hat was on. She didn't know just where she was going.

SQUEEZE OUT WHITEHEADS TO REMOVE THEM

BY ALICIA Hart

Whiteheads may sound less like blemishes than blackheads, but often they are even more troublesome. If you have never made their acquaintance personally, they are those tiny white pimple-like swellings that appear on your chin or around the sides of your nostrils.

Like blackheads, whiteheads are caused by tired skin, lazy skin, skin that does not properly discharge the oil secretions that it is supposed to cast off.

Because of fatigue or some other reason, the skin doesn't work energetically enough to cast off the oil gathering in the glands. It doesn't reach the surface to gather dust and dirt, as blackheads do, but makes a hard, tiny lump under the skin.

You must prick the whitehead before you can get out the bit of matter inside. Sterilize your needle and then, when you have pricked it and squeezed it out with bits of sterilized cotton, be sure to treat the spot with antiseptic. Then use your astringent and massage your face.

Massage is the best prevention of whiteheads. It stimulates circulation and you can't have many whiteheads when your skin is carefully groomed and the blood is circulating freely to give life to the skin. Massage stirs the facial muscles into greater resiliency and this makes for a healthy skin.

Use good creams and lively astringents. They contribute their share and the act of putting them on livens up the skin. You can get rid of the whiteheads that you have and prevent more if you make up your mind.

(Copyright 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

want to turn a father from his own children.

Now you say the fault lies with the children—that they failed to cooperate and help you. But honestly what active cooperation did you expect from two babes of eight and six who had been badly brought up—and who naturally viewed with suspicion the new-comer in their lives. Had you started off on the right foot with them, whom knows how much cooperation they might not have offered you.

But as a matter of fact, you found them lacking in charm and in manners and in everything else under the sun that you felt they should have—so you began a big course in improvement.

And the two small people resented your methods bitterly. You hadn't gained their confidence—their love, or their respect before you began your criticisms, and your suggestions and your admonitions. The result was of course that your two new acquisitions flamed into open rebellion and have never ceased to regard you as an enemy from that day to this. Don't blame them entirely for that. At the age of eight one is not able to be just and understanding, you know.

Perhaps if you admitted to yourself that you've made a failure of a very difficult and delicate piece of work—you might find yourself in the frame of mind to start all over again. Instead of going in for a steady course of improvement on the two youngsters, start with the understanding that until you make the boy and girl fond of you you can't do anything to improve the situation.

If you can make an honest effort to understand your small charges and to love them and help them, I think the atmosphere in your home will clear magically. Children WILL respond to love and genuine affection. And their father's attitude will change toward you too when he sees that you are doing everything in your power to be a real friend to his motherless babies.

You can do everything to make your home a happy place—and you can easily make a perfect misery of it, if you turn your face away from your duty and complain sadly that it's all too hard, and that Fate has played you a mean trick in burdening you with two unattractive and unmanageable children. You make those children what you want them to be—and you do it with all the tact and sympathy in the world—and some day you'll be proud of the job you were once tempted to throw over entirely.

BETH: Write and tell the boy that you intend to be his good friend for always but that you can have no other feeling for him. So long as you make this perfectly clear to him, you are playing quite fair, and there is no reason why you shouldn't continue your friendship on this basis.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

UNWELCOME STEPCHILDREN—STEPMOTHER SHOULD WIN THEIR AFFECTION—TRUST BEFORE ATTEMPTING CHANGES

Dear Virginia Vane: Help me to solve my problem for I am at the end of my rope. I married a widower who had two children, a boy of eight and a girl of six. The children lived with their grandmother for a year after I was married, and so I did not have to meet them. When they came to live with me, I imagine my disappointment to find that they were unattractive and bad-tempered. They had been so badly brought up, they were a perfect disgrace. I began by trying to improve them but found them absolutely unmanageable. From the very first they were against me—never tried to help me or cooperate in any way. Their father will do nothing to make my life easier but blames me for all the trouble in the house. I cannot stand this life and don't intend to. But I love my husband and want to know how I can influence him to my way of thinking.

MRS. E. A.

If your husband is truly fond of his youngsters, you nor any other woman in the world will be able to influence him against them—and as a matter of fact if you're a just woman and a good wife, you won't

EAT TWICE AS MUCH LOSE 10 POUNDS OF FAT IN TEN DAYS!

An Italian Discovery

Drink Water Before Breakfast and Make One Change in Diet Only to Rip Off Ten Pounds in 10 Days

1ST DAY 10TH DAY

TOO FAT 10 LBS. OFF

HERE is sweet music, in scientific tempo, for fat people's ears. "Eat more to grow thin."

Thanks to a unique Italian discovery, thousands of people are doing it. Losing as much as seven pounds a week, and building their health as well.

Here's the way. So if you want to get rid of some bulk, cut this article out and save it. Chances are, in a week, your friends will be wondering what you've been doing to yourself to get rid of the fat they used to tease you about.

What You Do

FIRST: As soon as you get up in the morning, put two tablespoonfuls of sparkling Brioschi Italian effervescent in a half glass of cool water, and drink it down while it is still effervescent. This tends to de-acidify the system before food touches the stomach.

NEXT: Make just one simple change in your diet. Eat DOUBLE the quantity you now eat of certain foods; and cut down on others. Here are the foods to double on; the ones to cut down on.

DOUBLE on these: Carrots, spinach, oranges, cabbage, lettuce, new turnips, white squash, sauerkraut, broccoli, fresh peas, apples, and all green vegetables. See how much of these you can make your stomach hold. Eat also your usual appetite's requirement of any lean meat. Beef, veal, chicken, etc., etc.

CUT on these: Eat bran or whole wheat bread instead of white bread or biscuits. For dessert have fresh fruit instead of pastry. Cut down on butter but don't cut it out entirely.

BEFORE BED: Repeat two tablespoonfuls of sparkling Italian Brioschi in half a glass of water to again de-acidify the stomach. Don't think, either, that this is hard. It makes a really pleasant drink that tastes like lemonade, not like vile-tasting salts. So everything is easy.

The result of this dietary change will be that you'll really have MORE than you want to eat, yet will see fat go in a way you wouldn't have believed. And, you'll feel more active than you probably have for years. For the diet that takes off the fat, cut this article out and save it. The de-acidifier you use is called Brioschi Italian effervescent (pronounced Bree-oh-schi). You can get it at any drug store.

PLAYERS READY FOR FIRST SHOWING OF "OLD HEIDELBERG"

Capacity Crowds Expected at Performances Tonight and Sunday

Menasha—The first presentation of "Old Heidelberg," probably the largest amateur production ever given in the Twin Cities, will be made by the Menasha Players at the Menasha auditorium Friday evening. The curtain will rise promptly at 8:15.

Preparations by a cast of more than 60 players was completed Thursday evening when the final dress rehearsal was conducted under the direction of T. E. McGilligan. Members of the cast will appear in costume and elaborate settings for the four acts and five scenes in the production.

In addition to the initial performance Friday evening, a matinee for children will be given Sunday afternoon and a final presentation Sunday evening. Capacity audiences on all three occasions are indicated by early ticket sales and a large number of Fox River Valley notables have been invited to attend the final showing.

Those included in the cast are: E. Fahrback, Bernard Jung, H. E. Landgraf, T. E. McGilligan, J. J. Mueller, Harry Oakes, E. G. Sorenson, Edward McGilligan, Bert Finch, Laura Tuchscherer, Irene Harney, Margaret Borenz, B. L. Jung, J. Resch, Jr., John Walter, Jr., Konrad Tuchscherer, Marvin Trough, Victor Becker, and a number of students.

DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP OF BOWLING LEAGUE

Menasha—The championship of the Marathon bowling league will be decided in the final evening of competition on Hendy alleys Friday. The Credit trio, with one postponed set of four games to bowl, is clinging to a narrow lead in circuit standings. The Maintenance No. 2 team is a close second with 61 wins and 35 losses while the Keglers are third with 58 wins and 38 losses.

THERMANSON BOWLS HIGH 724 SERIES

Gets Games of 221, 272 and 231 to Set Fast Pace in League

Menasha—H. Thermanson, bowling with the Engravers, topped 724 pins in three games to take undisputed high scoring honors in Hendy Recreation city league competition here Thursday evening. Thermanson chalked up single games of 221, 272, and 231 while his team defeated the Central Papers in two out of three games.

A number of unusually high scores featured league competition Thursday evening. Gerald Jeffry, bowling with the Twin City Laundry aggregation, scored single games of 239, 270, and 153 for a 692 pin, series while his team took two out of three thits from the Anderson Cafe. Two of Jeffry's team mates, Pawlowski and Grant, were credited with three game totals of more than 600 pins.

D. Raleigh of the Gear Dairy squad hit 650 nables in three games, with singles counts of 152, 226, and 247, helping his team to wins in three straight games with the Menasha Products aggregation. E. Osterag of the Hendy Recreation squad scored a 647 series total with single of 243, 191, and 218 but his team failed to win more than one of three games from the Meyer Service station. H. Gollner and A. Lipske led the opposition with 616 and 623 totals respectively.

The Menasha Cleaners defeated the strong Gilbert Paper company team in three straight games while the Fahrback Agency won two out of three contests from the Menasha Wholesale Store, the Acker Nite Hardware and two out of three from John Scheffer's Five and the Marathon Mills won two out of three games from the Pankratz Fuels.

TWIN CITY MAYORS AT HEAD OF PARADE

Event Advertises Opening of Play at Auditorium Tonight

Menasha—Mayor N. G. Remmel of Menasha and Mayor George Sande of Neenah were to ride at the head of a parade through the twin cities at noon today in preparation for the opening presentation of "Old Heidelberg" in St. Mary auditorium Friday evening.

The parade will include the two mayors, the St. Mary high school band under the direction of G. Unser, a squad of four motorcycle officers, and students carrying banners announcing the show. The line of march will be from the Valley Inn, Neenah, through the business sections of the two towns to St. Mary auditorium in Menasha.

During all three presentations of "Old Heidelberg" only the Third-ent entrance to the auditorium will be available. It was announced today. Friday evening the orchestra, directed by Phil Laffey, will begin an overture at 8:05 and the curtain will rise promptly at 8:15.

CONGREGATIONAL BOY SCOUTS PLAN OUTING

Menasha—Boy scouts of Troop 14 met in the Congregational church parlors Thursday evening. # FAVORABLE REPORT ON CLAIM OF $65

Bill Allowing Menasha Man's Claim Now on Calendar for Action

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington—A bill to settle the claim of B. F. Hart of Menasha, Wis., for $65, introduced by Sen. Robert E. Howell of Nebraska has been favorably reported by the Senate claims committee, headed by the Nebraska senator, and is now on the calendar for action.

On May 16, 1925, a check for $65 was drawn to the order of Theodore John Gustavus by a disbursing agent of the veterans bureau for vocational rehabilitation, maintenance, and support allowance for May 15, 1925. Gustavus endorsed the check over to Hart, who put it in his cash register. Somehow the check "worked its way to the read department" of the cash register, and was discovered by Hart only last year.

Meanwhile, since it had been outstanding for more than three years, the veterans' bureau canceled it, and Hart could not collect it when he found it a year ago.

Furthermore, the bureau found that it had overpaid Gustavus a total of $79.66 and thus could do nothing about issuing another check. But as the bureau felt that Hart was not to blame for their mistake in overpaying Gustavus or for the misplacement of the check, it asked congress to reimburse him for the loss.

NEW BUILDING FOR MARCH IS $25,600

Report for March Submitted by Paul Theimer, City Inspector

Menasha—Building permits authorizing construction estimated at $25,630 were issued in Menasha during March, according to the monthly report of Paul Theimer, city building inspector.

The permit for building the new Chester Shepard residence on East Nicolet-bld., at an estimated cost of $25,000 is the largest single item on the list.

Thomas Woyak, 934 Seventh-st. was granted permission to build an addition at $300; Herman Reinhold, 313 Railroad-st., a garage at $150; Hans Schmeling, 399 Oak-st., an outside stair at $30; Paul Tews, 315 Garfield-ave., a dormer at $50; and J. Deural, 804 Sixth-st., an addition at $100.

ELKHORN POST IN PROTEST OF LEGION NON-BONUS POSITION

Elkhorn—Copies of resolutions condemning the national administration of the American legion for its stand favoring non-payment of the bonus at this time have been mailed to member organizations and state legislatures by the Elkhorn legion post.

Charges that self-appointed leaders within the legion are fostering their own interests and furthering their selfish political ambitions with back room conferences in no way reflecting the attitude of the rank and file of the legion are contained in the resolutions.

The resolutions also cite the readiness with which the federal government handed bankers and railroads two billion dollars while ex-soldiers were in actual poverty.

OUTLINE COST OF NEW WATER PLANT

Water Works Commission Describes Plans for Financing Proposed Project

Neenah—A statement outlining the cost and describing the means of financing the proposed water softening and filtration plant was issued today by the Neenah water works commission. The statement follows:

"It has come to the attention of the Water Works commission that there is some doubt in the minds of citizens as to the cost of the proposed softening and filtration plant, the financing of the same, and the authority of the commission in the matter of the construction of the plant.

"First, as to the cost: The original estimate of the consulting engineer, Consoer, Older and Quinlan, was $85,000. On March 5, 1932, due to lower labor and material costs, the estimate was reduced to $75,000 for the entire project.

"Second, as to the financing: The common council has three ways of financing the construction cost; by raising the funds through taxation, which is the customary procedure in water works installation; by using all or part of the funds of the water works department, set aside from earnings of that department, for depreciation and surplus (which fund was $89,156.11 in cash on Jan. 1, 1932); or by the balance of the cost over the amount used from said funds of the water department from taxation; or by issuing bonds for all or part of the cost.

"Third, as to the authority of the commission on the matter of the construction: The city attorney has advised that the common council has sole authority to authorize said project, construction, and to provide for the method of financing the same. This commission placed the matter of plant extension before the common council sometime ago, asking for its concurrence in the recommendation of the commission that an appropriation be made for the construction of said plant. The commission still stands on its original recommendation to the council and it is not contemplating any action whatever without concurrence and authority from the governing body of our city."

ORGANIZE COUNTY LEGION COUNCIL

Representatives from Five Legion Posts Attend Oshkosh Meeting

Neenah—A county council of the American legion was formed this week at Oshkosh. Representatives of five legion posts were present.

Delegates were present from Neenah, Menasha, Omro, Winneconne and Oshkosh. Commanders of the posts who were present were F. Reed, Omro; Dr. G. N. Pratt, Menasha; Daniel Nielsen, Neenah; Clarence Smith, Winneconne; and Paul C. Carver, Oshkosh. Clarence Loebach, Menasha, was designated commander. He will be a member of the council and others will be the commanders, service officers and one person from each post appointed by the commanders. Meetings will be held on call of the county commander.

A committee consisting of Earl E. Fuller, Oshkosh; Clarence Smith, Winneconne; and Waldo Erieland, Menasha, was appointed to make an investigation of the systems of giving assistance in other counties, particularly Fond du Lac and Outagamie-coes.

A fund has been set up by the Winneconne board for use in assisting veterans, but it is believed it will not be sufficient to last throughout the year at the rate it now being used. Some method of conserving the money as much as possible and of using it to the best possible advantage must be devised, it was said.

R. M. MacKinnon, Oshkosh, Sixth district commander of the legion, reported the membership in the district is now 3,223 veterans.

The second event will be a two-day affair, Aug. 6 and 7, when the Fox River valley doubles championship matches will be played.

SIX ARRESTED AS SUSPECTS IN ROBBERIES

Three Confess Guilt in Nine Bank Holdups in Illinois, Wisconsin

gren. The identity of the fourth man seized was not revealed but the police said they were satisfied he was not connected with the robberies.

Edward Kuzma was later seized as an accomplice whose part, police said was to provide refuge in his home to the others after the robberies. The police said the confessions implicated Frank Faifer as being a member of the actual robber band and as a search for Faifer brought out he was in the Cook-co jail on a charge of staging a minor robbery.

The banks the three men confessed to robbing and their reported loot in each were:

First National bank of Mazon, Grundy-co, Ill., $15,000.

State bank of Mundelein, Ill., two separate robberies, $2,700 and $10,000.

Tazewell County National bank, Delavan, Ill., $5,500.

Marquon State bank, Knox-co, Ill., $32,000.

Kingwood State bank, McHenry-co, Ill., $2,000.

Kirkland State bank, DeKalb, Ill., about $25.

Citizens bank, Delavan, Wis., $7,000.

Milton Junction, Wis., bank, $4,000.

Reports that the trio also confessed to robbing the York State bank in DuPage-co, Ill., of $5,000 were denied by the police. The robbery of the bank in the Kirkland bank robbery was small because bank employees drove the robbers away with pistol fire.

Held Bankers Captive In most of the robberies staged by the band, the authorities said, they entered the homes of officials, made themselves comfortable and discussed topics of the day with the victims and their families, and when the time came for time locks on the bank vaults to open, forced the officials to accompany them to banks and admit them.

Last night's raid and captures climaxed an investigation of several weeks which grew out of a tip received by Arthur E. Bennett, chief deputy sheriff, and James Myers, chief investigator at the state's attorney's office, of DuPage-co.

Bennett engaged in a running pistol battle with three robber suspects some time ago, captured three of them, wounding two. The tip, he said, came from this trio, Nick Skrynik, Walter Glenwallier and Stanley Kurno, all are said to be wanted in connection with holdups in northern Illinois.

The Illinois Bankers' association operatives and Chicago police were enlisted in the inquiry and the raid last night. Faifer had been arrested in connection with the minor holdup on information that did not link him with the alleged bank robbers although it came from Kurno.

Three other supposed members of the band were being sought, but they were not named in the confessions. The robbers' method of operation was unusual, the police said, in that Bennett drove their car as a woman to escape suspicion of passersby.

In the confessions they were reported to have said after each of the robberies they dashed to Kuzma's home, left their armaments and disguised the loot and drove away. Kuzma, they said, was paid $100 for every such visit.

Seeks Another Link Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said he was trying to determine whether the men under arrest had any connection with the robbery of the Northwestern National bank at Minneapolis in which $50,000 in cash and $100,000 in securities was taken.

He said he has been informed with witnesses identified a photograph of a Chicago police character as one of the robbers and a hat dropped by another bore the name of "Al Eakin, Joliet, Ill." Other officials said the Minneapolis robbery was not mentioned in the alleged robbers' confession.

The officials of victimized banks asked to come here today and view the robbers were John Paul, Sr., president of the Milton Junction, Wis., bank and members of his family, and Willis W. Crabb, president of the Tazewell County National bank of Delavan, Ill., and Mrs. Crabb.

Mrs. Crabb was kidnapped and held hostage by two robbers in cash and a third took Crabb to the bank June 5 and robbed it. The bandits removed Mrs. Crabb's shoes and stockings and released her 20 miles from her home.

Woman's "No" Keeps Split In Minnesota Party Ranks

Minneapolis—(AP)—A gray-haired, middle-aged woman today said "no" and with that vanished hope of reuniting Minnesota Democrats before the party's national convention at Chicago in June.

Her decision made certain that two full states of delegates from the state will compete for seats at the meeting to nominate the party's candidate for president.

Mrs. Ruth Haynes Carpenter is the woman heading the dissenting group.

When the party's state convention was held early in March and delegates instructed to support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York were chosen, Mrs. Carpenter started a bolt of dissenters.

She accused "regulars" of having packed the convention by secretly increasing the membership of the state central committee from less than 100 to 260, selecting only Roosevelt supporters and giving each a vote in the convention.

In twenty minutes she organized a rump convention which selected another slate of delegates without instructing them, although Mrs. Carpenter and most of her followers are potential supporters of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith. Her supporters began calling her "the Joan of Arc of the party."

Harmony overtures began and continued almost daily and Mrs. Carpenter listened but refused to make peace.

Today she served notice that she will no longer even listen and at the same time she announced that a brief contesting seating of the Roosevelt delegates has been forwarded to the National Democratic committee.

Preservation of the party's identity in the state is one of her movement's announced aims. She accuses the "regular" group of preparing to agree to trade Democratic support for state candidates of the Farmer-Labor support to Roosevelt if he is nominated. To block such a step, her group proposes to present a ticket of Democratic candidates.

Senate Cuts Down Funds Of Bureaus

Washington—(AP)—The senate, which will have the next and the last say on taxes, appropriations and bonus payments is on an economy rampage.

In the spirit now pervading this chamber, the appropriation bills are due for a drastic slash, some of the higher income taxes voted by the house are facing a paring down and the bonus bill is doomed to defeat. The senate leaders believe this spirit will continue undiminished.

So far two of the annual supply bills have been sent back to the appropriations committee for 10 per cent reductions. All the other measures appropriating funds for next year's operating expenses of the government are facing the same treatment.

As a result of this unprecedented action, the senate appropriations committee is marking time on the other necessary appropriation bills. Department heads have been notified to give recommendations for further paring down. They have protested but the senate means business.

7 BILLION SPENT YEARLY TO RUN CITIES OF U. S.

But Actual Benefits Are Local Rather Than State or National

(In this, the fifth of a series of twelve articles by David Lawrence on Balancing the Budget, the rising cost of city budgets is outlined with the analysis of the principal items that eat up the taxpayers' money.)

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1932 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Forty years ago we spent less than a half billion dollars a year on all city governments in the United States. Today we spend approximately seven billion dollars a year for much the same purposes.

Most of the actual benefits we receive in the field of government are local rather than state or national. Thus police protection, traffic regulation, education, safeguarding of public health are functions entrusted for the most part of municipal governments. While the federal government spends only fourteen millions of dollars a year in education—and this is vocational and landgrant college work—out of a total of four billions of dollars, the States spend about a half billion dollars a year for education, and all the cities spend a total of close to two billion dollars a year to develop an educated citizenry. Similarly the cities bear the brunt of the expense for "highways," which of course means streets and paving. With sewers and other improvements, this item is in excess of a billion dollars a year in the city budgets whereas the states with their large interest in highways spend not to exceed six hundred million dollars. Thus the municipalities spend for education and streets and public improvements about half of their budgets.

Half A Billion For Police
The next big item in the city budgets is social welfare which is in excess of seven hundred million dollars a year. Here again the cities have had to bear the burden of relief work from year to year. Even in times of prosperity there have been jobless individuals and other charitable necessities.

So by classifying city expenditures we find that education takes 30 per cent, social welfare 20 per cent, highways 18 per cent, and police protection 15 per cent. Remaining items are divided in general administration, public utilities, etc.

Now outside of current expenses the big items in city budgets is debt redemption and interest. This amounts to a billion dollars a year.

When it is considered that state and local borrowings were averaging in the neighborhood of a billion dollars a year up to 1929, some idea of the importance of calling a halt to increased borrowings by states and cities can be obtained. In other words if the states and cities had not had impressed upon them the necessity of stopping their public borrowings, their annual budgets would have had to take care of further increasing expense for debt redemption and interest.

It is significant that total cost of interest and debt redemption for the cities alone is two thirds of that same item in the federal government. The latter spends about a billion and a half a year both for interest and debt retirement.

Enormous Interest Item
If we take the combined cost of federal, state and local expenditures in America we find that the taxpayers are spending approximately two billion, eight hundred million dollars a year for debt redemption and interest. This is close to twenty five per cent of the combined budgets of all governments inside the United States. This means that the area within which economies can be made is approximately seventy-five per cent. Budgets, of course, must be so arranged therefore that current governmental expenses can be met out of taxes and other revenues and still leave twenty-five per cent surplus to care for interest and debt redemption.

The difficulty really is that people have not realized that debt redemption and interest are as vital a part of a budget as any single operating item in it. Bonds that are defaulted impair the credit of a government and result in drastic and often painful reorganization of the tax structure at times when the public can least afford to pay.

Within the last two years, especially since the depression began, tax payers have been taking a greater interest in municipal affairs. News of taxpayers' revolts and keen interest in the reduction of city budgets is constantly being reported from all sections of the country. This situation has been forced by the fact that the investors of the nation who hitherto have regarded municipal securities as gilt edged are now seeking to know what kind of management each city has, what is the status of its assessments on property and what sort of job is done by its collecting machinery in raising the necessary revenue. City governments are experiencing the need for reduced operating expenses and complete overhauling of their fiscal machinery.

Cities Most Expensive
Of all the units of government in America the municipalities are the most expensive and, it is believed, the most extravagant. Although there are many instances of efficient government and excellent management. The present crisis may mean the introduction of new methods of fiscal control particularly non partisan organizations perhaps even a permanent personnel. While the City Manager idea for example has often been frustrated by poor personnel or political machinations, it would not be surprising if modified forms of city managements became generally popular as a means of getting cities out of their difficulties.

Politicians are not able to cut budgets as ruthlessly as are managers employed for the specific purpose of putting city governments on a business basis.

The trend is toward more efficiency in management hence less borrowing and a better credit standing and ultimately of course reduced taxes in our American cities. The only question is how soon will the process be stimulated in enough places and with enough vigor to bring down materially the whole cost of city governments.

(Tomorrow's article will deal with taxation and where the federal revenues come from.)

MOUNTED POLICE USE AIRPLANES TO RUN DOWN CULPRITS

Major General James H. MacBrien Heads Canadian Officers

Ottawa—"and get him by air!" To the famous slogan, "get your man," of Canada's Royal Mounted Police, that picturesque "army" of 1200 red-coated men whose beat extends to within 700 miles of the North Pole, may soon be added these words.

For under Major General James H. MacBrien, noted Canadian aviator who has been named chief of this world-renowned band of man-hunters, Canada's "Mounties" are taking to the air. For much of their work, planes are supplanting their equipment of horses, dog sleds and snowshoes, long used in patrolling their lonely Arctic domain.

Recently, General MacBrien's men used airplanes to search out and bomb the retreat of a mad trapper who had defied the "Mountie" after murdering one of their number. That expedition having "got its man," it is now expected that the airplane will become an increasing aid in patrolling northern Canada's bad lands, especially since the new chief is one of the outstanding amateur pilots in the Dominion.

General MacBrien's own life has been as colorful as that of the picturesque police organization that he heads.

Army Veteran

The new chief is a soldier — 54 years old now, but straight as an arrow and as hard as nails as the result of 31 years in the army. He joined up when he was 19, leaving his books and studies and his intended career as a school teacher, for adventure with the British expeditionary forces to South Africa in the Boer War of 1897.

He returned safe and sound to his home at Port Perry, Ontario, and then joined the Northwest Mounted Police as a trooper in the early days of settlement of western Canada.

Leaving the Mounted at the end of his term, General MacBrien went back to the army, was promoted to major and came out of the World War a full-fledged major-general.

The story is told that during his early service in France he took his first airplane flight as an observer. He liked it, and began to fly more. Later, before his troops went into an attack, General MacBrien personally flew over the enemy positions to better plan the action, risking anti-aircraft shells and attack by German planes. He is said to have been the only general who did this—but then he was the youngest, and flying was a young man's game.

Back in Canada, he was put in charge of the Dominion's defenses and having seen the effect of aviation in war time he followed its development closely. He went so far as to take a full course in aviation at a Canadian army training field and came out with his pilot's certificate.

In 1927, General MacBrien found himself in the position of other generals who have to depend on their salary. His pay was insufficient to uphold his position as Canada's chief-of-staff and give his five children college educations. He resigned to enter commercial aviation as general transport manager of a large aviation concern, spent much

Coolidge Croons; Mellon Joins Bread Line; Gandhi Hurdles—And They Say Camera Doesn't Lie!

By radio, telephoto, airplane and carrier pigeon. The Appleton Post-Crescent and NEA Service have succeeded in gathering today's most amazing news in pictorial form, constituting what would seem to be one of the most remarkable achievements of modern journalistic enterprise.

The above photos of foreign and national events are right up to the minute. . . . For instance, it was only this morning that a staff photographer in Northampton,

Mass., snapped the megaphone picture at upper left, of Calvin Coolidge, as he was taken up crooning — at the rate of $1 a word, "Bing" Coolidge, as he will be billed during his forthcoming vaudeville tour, has composed a new theme song called "Just Around the Corner." Below you see Alfalfa Bill Murray, who has just started out on hands and knees to push a peanut to Washington. Oklahoma's acrobatic governor (the stand on his head, too) is a veteran political showman who believes in keeping close to the soil. The homely expedient adopted here is calculated to get him to the White House by 1933. . . . The next picture, at the top, shows a headline. And right at the front, receiving a hand-out, is the tattered figure of Andrew W. Mellon. What — you thought the former Secretary of the Treasury and Ambassador to Great Britain was one of the world's rich men? Well, here's pictorial evidence that times are really tough. . . . Two famous leaders in German affairs are shown below as they rode together through Berlin streets to acknowledge the cheers of delighted throngs. President von Hindenburg, left, and Adolf Hitler, "Nazi" chief, have patched up their differences and when this picture was taken, were promising to vote for each other in the April 10 election.

named Gandhi who is in training for the Olympic Games next summer. Only recently he was leading the India's campaign for independence, but discovered quite by accident — while being pursued by one of his goats which had taken a fancy to his loin cloth—that he was a natural-born athlete. Here you see him, all three sheets to the wind, earning his new nickname of "Mahopma." . . . Below, the camera has recorded a significant turn in the American presidential campaign. Alfred E. Smith found an old brown derby among his souvenirs in the attic of the Empire State building and rushed to Washington to present it to Herbert Hoover. "You can't lose, Mr. Hoover," Smith was saying. "I shall use all my influence in your behalf!" . . . Down in Florida, where his 92 years rest lightly on his brawny shoulders, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., has taken up parachute jumping. "I got the idea from the stock market," the great man told reporters, to whom he passed out IOU's for 10 cents each. "The depression has made me feel very jumpy." Here you see Mr. Rockefeller as he landed at Ormond Beach for a round of golf. . . . By this time you may have suspected that there isn't a vestige of truth in all this. Photographers, intending no offense to anyone, commended these pictures as an April Fool joke.

CHINESE CROWD IN ATTACK ON JAPANESE

Shanghai — (AP)—Animosities between Chinese and Japanese civilians, which had been dying down considerably, were stirred anew Thursday afternoon when a group of Chinese ruffians attacked and seriously injured a Chinese man who the day runs from $2 a day up, depending on rank and seniority. General MacBrien makes his home and his headquarters in Ottawa. As the commander-in-chief of the Mounted Police, he can be seen at practically all state functions resplendent in scarlet and gold and the feathered hat of his rank.

FIVE BUFFALOES DIE AS STAMPEDE RESULT

Ponca City, Okla. — (AP)—Five of the famous old 101 Ranch's buffaloes have perished because they wanted to be free.

Fred Clarke, ranch receiver, said the shaggy beasts killed themselves in a spectacular battle royal when they were corralled by cowboys Wednesday for shipment after a stampede yesterday.

DELEGATES TO PICK CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

Gays Mills — (AP)—Delegates from Grant, Vernon and Crawford cos will meet here April 8 to endorse a Progressive candidate for the state senate from the 16th district. The three counties chose 29 delegates at meetings Saturday.

E. J. Roethe, of Fennimore, Conservative Republican, now represents the district. He has not yet indicated whether he will run for reelection in the fall.

45 CATTLE, 3 HORSES DIE IN BURNING BARN

Platterville — (AP)—Forty-five head of cattle and three horses were burned to death and a modern dairy barn and several other buildings destroyed when fire swept the William Stanover farm, north of here Wednesday. The fire started about 11 p. m. and spread rapidly through the barn. Corn cribs, machine sheds and machinery were wiped out by the flames.

POINCARÉ SEES HIS NAME PLACED BESIDE THOSE OF HEROES

Aged French Leader Has Been Riddle in Politics for Many Years

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris — Raymond Poincaré, the "Lion of Lorraine" and the French counterpart of Calvin Coolidge, is the last of the "Big Six" who brought France through the World War and the period of unrest and critical reconstruction which followed.

He lies seriously ill at his home in the little town of Samigny in the department of the Meuse, once ruled by the World War battles which decided the fate of France.

Saying the axiom that a prophet is without honor in his own country, Poincaré at last holds a place in the hearts of the French hardly less secure than his more famous war contemporaries, Joffre, Foch and Clemenceau.

With these three men and with the astute Aristide Briand and the brilliant René Viviani, Poincaré ruled the destinies of France at a time when the horizon was darkened by German armies firmly entrenched in vital portions of his nation.

All the others are gone.

Viviani, the silver-tongued orator, who could sway sentiment by the sheer power and magnetism of his voice.

Foch, who took command of the Allied armies in that black March of 1918, and brought order out of despair.

Clemenceau, the Tiger of France, who guided his country through the treacherous days of the Versailles conference.

Briand, the man of peace, who strove mightily to make France's place secure in the scheme of nations.

Only Poincaré is left of this imposing group.

At 72 he has outlived his time, perhaps, but he has lived to see his place in France's history become a large one.

Never a man to inspire the heroic devotion given to Joffre and Clemenceau by their ardent followers, he is nevertheless a figure of great importance in French history.

President, premier, minister of finance, senator, . . . all these honors have been his.

And even his enemies, and they are few, admit that he accomplished in the main the principal objects of each job by the sheer force of his iron will.

Poincaré will always be a mystery to France. He is not a type anyone would ever believe could be a politician. He is not a brilliant speaker, and his political strategy has often been unsound.

But in the end, when the battle was finally finished, it was unusual for Poincaré who had won.

Perhaps the most remarkable personality characteristic of Raymond Poincaré is his prodigious memory. He once spoke before the Chamber of Deputies for more than two hours on the subject of French finances, without once referring to notes. He freely quoted the mammoth figures of the French budget, even giving the number of centimes estimated, and in each instance was absolutely correct.

On another occasion, he wrote from memory for a Paris newspaper which had failed to receive its advance copy, a special article given. Later, when the advance copy made its belated arrival, the two were compared and found to be exactly identical.

No picture of Poincaré, however, would be complete without an insight into his almost amazing knowledge of figures and governmental economy which enabled him to balance budgets and cut down appropriations at a time when it seemed that France was doomed to bankruptcy.

In 1926, as he approached the age when retirement must be near, he startled the world and his nation by balancing the budget when others had given it up in despair. His act expenses here and raised revenues there until the "impossible" had been accomplished.

This was one of his greatest services to France, and it ended for years, at least, the French mistrust of the franc and of their nation's financial stability.

His habits have been simple, and his hobbies few. Here he most resembles the American College. He was interested in no sports, devoted social functions, made no effort to stir the public imagination by startling actions or speeches and spent his working hours in plain, hard work.

Walking was his exercise and his diversion. An early riser at his life, he seldom spent less than an hour on his daily hikes, and there were few who could keep up with his long strides and rapid pace.

A middle of French politics, Poincaré has lived to see his name placed alongside those of Foch, Joffre, Clemenceau, Viviani and Briand, who eclipsed him at the time of his greatest service, principally because of their greater personal magnetism and appeal to the popular imagination.

During the ten-year period from 1920 to 1930 there were about 1,000 cases of smallpox in the United States.

Company Would Broadcast Conversation From Planes

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1932, By Cons. Press
Washington (CPA)—Not to be outdone in stunt broadcasts, the National Broadcasting Co. will attempt within the next 10 days to broadcast a three-way conversation between planes in flight over New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

While the network has sought to keep the information confidential for the time being, it was learned today that detailed arrangements have been made for the broadcast and that the necessary authority has been obtained from the federal radio commission. The experiment, which would be the first of its kind ever attempted, in that the planes will be in flight about 1,500 miles apart, follows the successful stunt of Columbia Broadcasting System last Sunday evening, when a complete program of entertainment was transmitted from a train speeding between Washington and Baltimore.

The NBC broadcast will be sometime between April 1 and 15—probably toward the end of the period authorized by the radio commission. It actually will be a six-way conversation, because the NBC stations in the three cities also will participate. The contacts between the planes and the network stations will be made by short wave—just as the train broadcast of CBS was accomplished.

Plane-to-plane communication, of course, is not new and is effected regularly by military formations in their war games. Commercial transports also maintain such contacts. But the feat of having three planes, one on the east coast, another in the center of the country, and a third on the west coast, engage in conversation with ground stations at each locality, as well as between themselves, and to have the entire proceeding broadcast over a nationwide network, would be an unprecedented engineering achievement.

The networks now are regularly adding to their bags of radio tricks. Thus far, stunt broadcasts have been achieved from ships at sea, and even from a submarine, as well as aircraft and dirigibles soaring overhead. The Columbia broadcast from a train traveling a mile a minute followed the recent NBC achievement of broadcasting the rumble of a Hawaiian volcano in eruption. Special departments are at work for both networks making arrangements for such events.

At the end of 1930 there were 2,625,000 electric refrigerators in operation in the United States.

ADVISES PEOPLE WITH DISEASES TO BE CAUTIOUS

Care Helps Keep Down Spread of Germs, Medical Society Says

Madison — Men are often carriers of infectious diseases. Typhoid fever may be carried by certain persons. Tuberculosis may be carried by neglectful people. Cold are spread by people.

Whooping cough and measles are carried by children, and even hoof and mouth diseases are carried by travelers.

"If people with diseases would be cautious, the rate of illness from infectious diseases could be reduced. This is best illustrated by the case of smallpox. The time was when nearly every human being contracted smallpox and many of them died. The disease was particularly prevalent among infants and young children. Contending armies suffered higher mortality from smallpox than from onslaught of their adversaries. This was all changed by the discovery of vaccination by Jenner in 1798. Smallpox is a preventable disease and its occurrence is a disgrace and a reflection on the intelligence and the sanitary status of a community. In connection with the discovery of the toxin of the diphtheria it has been learned that the administration of a minute dose of the so-called 'toxin-antitoxin' will prevent diphtheria. Scarlet fever can be prevented in the same way."

"Human beings themselves are frequently the carriers of disease. It is probable that many of the acute infectious diseases of childhood are directly conveyed from one child to another. Some individuals who have fully recovered from a disease may be carriers. There are others about to ill with a given disease, who are spreading disease germs, and there is a group of habitual carriers in whose body the germ lives and thrives, and from whose bodies the germs are excreted for a considerable period of time. Typhoid fever may be carried in this way by certain individuals for many years. The same is true of persons with tuberculosis. An adult who is coughing and expectorating is suffering from what is called an open tuberculosis. He is a carrier who may spread the disease by the spray or droplet method and is a menace to other persons, especially to infants and young children.

"It has been said that public health is public wealth. If the extent of human disease can be limited, human life can be prolonged, the world will be wealthier in that a great burden of sorrow will be removed and greater happiness promoted. Perhaps a few of us appreciate the great debt of gratitude which is due to those workers who have sacrificed everything, in some instances even life itself, to promote a science which has for its object the relief of human suffering, the prolongation of life and the prevention of death.

Perhaps more important than the cure of the disease is its prevention. This is best illustrated by the case of smallpox. The time was when nearly every human being contracted smallpox and many of them died. The disease was particularly prevalent among infants and young children. Contending armies suffered higher mortality from smallpox than from onslaught of their adversaries. This was all changed by the discovery of vaccination by Jenner in 1798. Smallpox is a preventable disease and its occurrence is a disgrace and a reflection on the intelligence and the sanitary status of a community. In connection with the discovery of the toxin of the diphtheria it has been learned that the administration of a minute dose of the so-called 'toxin-antitoxin' will prevent diphtheria. Scarlet fever can be prevented in the same way."

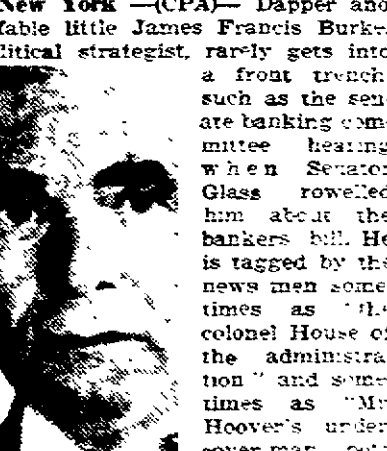

Madison — P—A total of 218 persons drowned in Wisconsin during 1931, a decrease of 16 as compared with the previous year, the bureau of vital statistics, state board of health, announced today.

During the past seven years, the board cites, a total of 1,922 fatalities have resulted from drownings in the state for an average of 281 annually. The bureau pointed out that this total figure is greater than the toll in the S. S. Titanic disaster in 1912 by 119 deaths.

A black bear cub weighs from 9 to 12 ounces at birth. This is about 1-25th of its full grown weight.

J. F. Burke

At any rate, he has been for 45 years an ardent virtuoso in politics. For 23 years counsel for the Republican National committee and during the present administration, the eye of the needle through which the camel of patronage must pass.

Mr. Burke, known to all third-second degree Republicans as Jim, is a rich Pittsburgh lawyer who served his political career as the assistant boss for Matthew Stuebel Quay. He has been the quiet, strong and unobtrusive catalyst of many administrations, flanking the demagogues and never being himself mixed up in the quarrels. He has rare felicity in recognizing and proclaiming greatness. He hated the "public excited and forthright" Warren G. Harding.

His was the slogan, "Content with Coolidge." In 1925, he proclaimed Herbert Hoover "the outstanding genius of the age."

From 1905 to 1915 Mr. Burke was in congress, an extraordinarily able parliamentarian and Republican whip under Uncle Joe Cannon. Forty years ago he was secretary of the Republican National committee. He is 64 now. Denying that he is the "mystery man" of the present administration he says he is merely Mr. Hoover's close friend and personal adviser.

One of the constituents of Representative Jed Johnson of Oklahoma once remarked, "You wouldn't think it, but Jed's got an education on him like a circus horse." True enough. The one-time Texas farm boy and statesman to be, was graduated with honors from L'Université de Clermont, France, and it is he who ironically proposes that the emergency three-cent postage stamp bear Herbert Hoover's picture. He could say it in French if he wanted to for he is an accomplished linguist.

Mr. Johnson is a young go-getter who quit the big war as a back private, ran himself up to congress in seven years. He was a civil service clerk, a salesman, editor of a Cotton county newspaper, lawyer and congressman. His daughters are Jedolyn Jean and Jean.

In the popular imagination, writing a successful play is like having the little ball click into the double, when you have a big stack of it, or when an inside streak is in, or to be a pop artist. Lysander, in the case of young Frederick Schick who has just quitted Broadway with his "Bloodstream" is one of those "pop" artists, and his migratory but not undisciplined A and his actions way still are the University of Montana, Oregon and California. Then he frisked around, China, Java, Japan in all sorts of exciting adventure. Secretly taking time to read his newspaper, he's off to Haiti, taking a peek at a Vodooism and probably figuring on

MOVIE DIRECTOR HELD IN TAX CASE

Edwin Carewe Accused of Evading Payment of $108,547 to U. S.

Los Angeles (AP)—Arrested on a secret indictment charging evasion of payment of $108,547.20 in income tax, Edwin Carewe, once a leading motion picture director, was at liberty under $5,000 bond today while deputy United States marshals sought G. Wallace Forge, Hollywood income tax adviser, who they assert aided Carewe in making his returns.

Carewe was indicted on four counts for evasions which allegedly took place over a four-year period. According to Carewe's attorney, differences arose between government investigators and Carewe over the profits of a motion picture starring Dolores Del Rio which he produced abroad. Carewe contended that as this picture was not made in this country the government should not share in its profits.

Forge, named in the indictment with Carewe, recently was released on probation after he pleaded guilty to aiding Robert Eades, late stage and screen star, in preparation of an alleged false return.

Working the O'Brien and his magic into a play "Bloodstream," which had its premiere Wednesday night, is a play of underground Alabama coal mine horrors such as no youth who punched a time clock or picked up a pin when the boss was looking would be apt to write.

RECEIVE STEEL FOR ADDITION TO PAPER MILL

Construction of New Building Resumed at Thilmany Company

Kaukauna—Steel for the new building to house equipment of the bag factory which is being moved here by the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., from Waukegan, Ill. arrived Thursday morning, and construction of the new building was resumed at once. The building is to be 135 by 200 feet, covering an area of 27,000 square feet. It will house the manufacturing, printing, and warehouse needs of the bag department.

The Permanent Construction Co., with W. J. Arenz as crew foreman, is in charge of building operations. The Permanent Construction Co. has completed construction of several new structures and is remodeling others in conjunction with the extension program of the Thilmany Co. More than 100 men have been employed on the crews, and at the peak of the employment the crew consisted of 110 men.

With the erection of the new building for the bag plant, bag machines, several printing machines, and other equipment will be moved into the new structure. Officials expect to start operations in the new plant about June 1. Approximately 50 men and girls will be employed in the factory, although at times more than 100 will be employed.

When the bag plant begins operation here all of the Thilmany manufacturing operations will be located in Kaukauna, as equipment from the Appleton mill also has been transferred here.

DRESS REHEARSAL FOR OPERETTA CAST

"Oh Doctor" to Be Presented by High School Students Tonight

Kaukauna—Dress rehearsal for the operetta, "Oh Doctor," to be given by students of the high school in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock Friday evening, was held Thursday afternoon. Lucille August, musical director, is in charge of the cast. A matinee was given for students of the high and grade schools at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The operetta is centered about a famous doctor, a sanatorium with life-giving spring water, and several actresses. The doctor, who operates the sanatorium, disowns his only son for marrying an actress. The doctor's wife, grieving for the son, and leaves all of her money to her orphaned niece, with the stipulation that the girl must spend the last 24 hours before her 21st birthday with the eccentric old doctor, before inheriting the money.

Action is developed with a lost letter bearing an important explanation, a kidnapping by Mexican rustlers, and is climaxed by the reunion of the son and sister with the doctor. The play ends with a honeymoon trip to South America.

Olin G. Dryer is general manager of the arrangements; Arthur Miller and Dorothy Bedat, business managers; Miss Lucille Austin, directors; Miss Ann Gibbons and Lillian Hembre, costumes; Misses Dorothy Draheim, Jane Harvey, Beatrice Sibole, Cecilia Calvey, and Henrietta Gould; makeup: William Nelson, Eloy Van-eenhoven, Donald McCormick, and Lloyd Franke, stage managers; Alex Enna, (De Pere high school), scenery; Miss Emily Meserole, dancing; Miss Carol Walker, properties; Richard Eslien, Edward Misiulski, and William Nelson, lighting.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE BELEAGUERED CITY.

If one were in a beleaguered city and were allowed to send out by wireless, for example, a short message to one's friends, one would consider very carefully what to say. The precious opportunity would not be squandered on passing out information that was trivial or irrelevant.

The Contract player is very much in this position. He is beleaguered by his adversaries. He is afforded (in the bidding) an opportunity of "telling the world" what he holds, and this opportunity is very restricted except where he is able to "force" each chance of bidding that he gets may be the last. It behooves him, then, to make sure that his precious opportunities are not frittered away.

Now, one chance that must never be lost is the chance of showing a biddable suit. To bid no trump, where one has a suit to show, is unpardonable. One is not only giving vague information, but one is also giving wrong information; for the no trump bid not only says: "I have a certain distributed strength," but it also says, in so many words, "I have no biddable suit." A final declaration at no trump is often to be sought, but it should be built up on a basis of precise information as to the suit strength that is held.

Here is an example of the penalty paid through failure to observe this axiom.

Neither side vulnerable.

RADINZ NAMED PRESIDENT OF DAIRY GROUP

Giant Dairy Industry Improvement Association Organized at Denmark

Denmark—The Giant Dairy Industry Improvement Association of Denmark, the first one of the kind in Wisconsin and the United States, held its organization meeting in the Denmark State bank Wednesday afternoon, elected a board of directors and officers, adopted by-laws and plans for the year, and decided to hold a business meeting of the directors in the bank Friday evening.

The Giant Dairy Industry Improvement Association is in reality a cow testing association. The feature that makes it the first of the kind in this country is that it originated with the farmers themselves, will be managed by the farmer and has a relation whatever to agricultural developments of the state and federal governments while other cow testing associations are purely or largely connected with these departments. The purpose of the Denmark association is similar to that of all others, however, namely, to test cows for production, cut low producing cows, improve feeding, and use herd sires from dams having high milk production records.

The association has 63 charter members owning over 1,500 cows, signed up on contracts and is incorporated as a non-stock and non-profit corporation. Nobody officially connected with the association will draw any salary with the exception of the cow tester.

The cow tester will probably be selected from a number of applicants for the position at the Friday evening meeting. The successful applicant will begin his work April 15 and will be paid on the 15th of each month thereafter.

Costs $1 Per Month

The cost of testing cows is $1 per month for 10 milk cows or less, $1.25 per month for 10 milk up to 15, and 5 cents per month for each additional cow over 15 in the herd.

"The sole purpose of this organization is the improvement of local dairy herds, both in the elimination of poor producing animals and better herd management, and each member agrees to direct his efforts toward that end," says the contract.

"It is further distinctly understood that no publicity will be given to any herd or individual animal and that all records will be considered private business records."

The directors elected are: Peter Duquaine, Louis Heyroth, Helgar Jensen, Martin Hansen, Clarence Ebeling, Charles Krueger, Henry Radinz, Elmer Johnson and R. Abraham.

The officers elected by the directors are: Henry Radinz, president; Charles Krueger, vice president;

Expect More Members

As the organization of the Giant Dairy Industry Improvement association is now completed it is expected that the membership will increase rapidly before April 15, the opening day for business.

In their organization work the Denmark farmers have taken their cue from the recommendations of spokesmen of agriculture departments of the state and federal government to the effect that if farmers wish to improve their financial condition through the introduction of economical methods they must organize and manage their own business themselves after the pattern of business men and manufacturers. Was the explanation given the writer Wednesday by one of the promoters of the new cow testing association for its origin and growth.

The business men of Denmark are assisting the farmers in organizing the new farmer-controlled cow testing association, according to the statement of a representative business man at the Wednesday meeting.

NO COMPROMISE IN KIDNAP VERDICT

Man Told to Convict or Acquit Trio Accused of Abducting Bower

Denver—(P)—An assignment to convict or acquit three men on the specific charge of kidnaping Benjamin P. Bower for ransom was before a jury here today.

replied to an inquiry by C. M. Delters, foreman, said no alternative verdict would be accepted in the trial of George Reed, Joe Pannell and Art Taylor.

Delters had asked whether the panel might return a verdict of accessory to the kidnaping of the bakery manager. The jury retired at 11 p. m. last night after eight hours of deliberation.

Charles T. Mahoney, defense attorney, said Bower's story of the abduction "looks fishy to me."

Stephen Knight, Bower's employer, to pay the ransom of $50,000.

"Genuine kidnapers," Mahoney said, "would have chosen a victim who could pay his own ransom."

Bower was released without payment of the money after five days of captivity. James T. Burke, deputy district attorney, identified the defendants as liquor law violators.

1 tsp. Martha Washington Vanilla
Wash the prunes and soak overnight in two cups of water. Cover, set over low flame, and cook gently until tender. Drain the prunes, remove the pits and cut in small pieces. To the juice add enough water to make 1 1/2 cups. Mix the sugar, corn starch and salt, add to the well beaten eggs, add the boiling prune juice while stirring constantly. Cook until thick in a double boiler—then add the evaporated milk and cook for 10 minutes longer. Add the vanilla and prunes, and mix well. Chill and serve with Joannes Quality Evaporated Milk whipped.

INSTALLMENT PLAN IN POPULAR USE IN ANCIENT BABYLONIA

Chicago — (AP) — These archaeologists, who are always digging up new facts from the old, have brought to light some new stories to show moderns they aren't so modern after all.

Not only did some of the ancients use the installment plan for buying things, but in Babylonia some 3,500 years ago a poor man could acquire a wife with five shekels down and the balance in easy payments.

Prof. Edward Chiera, of the University of Chicago, told about it at a conference yesterday of the American Oriental society. The story, he said, was written in clay tablets found at the site of the ancient Iraq city of Nini.

Neither is there anything new in the idea of brushing one's teeth. The ancient Indo-European some 1,700 years before Christ made a rite of this hygienic act. Dr. George V. Bobrinsky, also of the University of Chicago, said. Only they used twigs, taken from living trees, instead of toothbrushes.

And these modern young newspaper reporters who tear their hair when their editors edit their "copy" may find solace in the fact the ancient Egyptians did the same thing, using chicks on the hieroglyphics, in place of pencils. This was brought out by Prof. John A. Wilson of the institute.

a brand new cereal with a grand old flavor

HERE'S a fascinating new, flaky cereal you simply must try! Grape-Nuts FLAKES—the delicate, golden-flake companion to Grape-Nuts.

Never have you tasted such a completely delightful breakfast dish. It wins your appetite without a struggle and (rarest of all things among cereals) keeps on being your favorite spot in a pleasant breakfast no matter how often it appears on your table. WHAT FLAKES THEY ARE!

They're crinkly. They're curly. They're crisp as popcorn and sweet as a nut. And in them is the grandest, most famous flavor among breakfast good things—the flavor of Grape-Nuts!

But flavor isn't the only thing that these tempting flakes bring you! They bring you healthful nourishment, too! Grape-Nuts Flakes, like Grape-Nuts, provides many essential food elements. A single dish, served with whole milk or cream, supplies more varied nourishment than many a hearty meal!

Get the big, red, white and blue package from your grocer. Grape-Nuts Flakes, like Grape-Nuts, is a product of General Foods Corporation.

Keep Both Grape-Nuts and Grape-Nuts Flakes on your pantry shelf

Enjoy the Grape-Nuts flavor in this new FLAKES form. And keep on enjoying it in the familiar, nut-like kernels of GRAPE-NUTS itself—the crisp kernels so beneficial to teeth and gums.

GROCERS DISPLAYING NEW IMPROVED SHREDDED BISCUIT

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit Making Hit with Housewives

One of the biggest improvements in cereals for many years is the new Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit. Grocers say that it is gaining in popularity every day.

The new Kellogg biscuit is "pressure-cooked" by a special process that bakes in the rich flavor and retains all the food value of the whole wheat. It makes the biscuit easier to digest, as well.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are also toasted golden-brown on both top and bottom—not just one side. This makes them wonderfully crisp and crunchy. They are also a more convenient, economical size. Two biscuits just fit the cereal bowl—and you get 15 to the package, instead of the usual dozen.

Of special interest is the fact that the Kellogg biscuit is certified for food value by the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia, whose statement appears on every package.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are proving a boon to mothers, because of their outstanding deliciousness and health value. A tasty treat for breakfast, lunch, children's suppers. Delightful with hot or cold milk or cream, fruits or honey. Sold by grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

KITTY FREW

by JANE ABBOTT

Chapter 17
TWO KITTYS
DAVID shook his head. He did not look at her.
"Oh, David, why doesn't he send me some word? I-I can't bear it."
"Oh, yes, you can, Kitty." He spoke gruffly.
She'd said that before, to David, and he'd answered her like that. And invariably she'd stiffened herself to her unbearable heartache. She did now with a quick lift of her chin which David saw.
"I'm eating with you girls tonight. Oysters," he indicated a carton he was carrying carefully. "Maybe Max will drop in and give us some music."
And just as David wanted her to, Kitty thought of Max and his music. The fun of sitting around the old table, in what Dorcas called her "night club," eating the oysters. "Dorcas was there before them, a big gingham apron tied around her. The lamps were lit, a little fire kindled on the hearth. Coffee was boiling.
Dorcas usually enlivened such times with a vivid recounting of her day. Her assignments ranged from accused criminals to socialites.
Today she had had a particularly delightful evening. "The Times" though its publicity had been uncovering rare old editions for a local bookstore. A letter had come to Dorcas' attention, written in a fine script. Reading it, seeing the delicate pointed handwriting, she had sensed a story and followed it up.
"I wish you could have seen him. David - you'd see him for a character. He had a shawl around him, a little white hair, like a fine little trout around his head and pink cheeks. And so polite - I must have the only comfortable chair in the room and he must stand bowing until I sat down. And David, what do you think he owns? A first edition of the Old Curiosity Shop - You should have seen how he carressed it. It had been given to his father by Dickens himself. Will he sell it? Thank God, no."
But Dorcas' enthusiasm was for the little old man rather than for the rare old book. He lived here because his grandson had put him here in the back room of a boarding house. Dorcas had touched on a hunger that had not been satisfied. "He's an exile."
A mischievous look had leaped to her eyes. "I'm going to take him with me to Aunt Lydia's, Sunday. She says there aren't any real gentlemen left in the world. I'm going to show her she's wrong. Won't they look sweet talking together?"
Frequently Dorcas spoke, with affectionate amusement, of her Aunt Lydia, who was, she had explained to Kitty, her one root. Kitty had gathered that to a certain age this relative had directed Dorcas' life. She had had sent Dorcas to the girls' school near Poughkeepsie, of which Dorcas spoke often, scornfully Dorcas had left it to "go on her own." But her precious independence hadn't quite barred Aunt Lydia. Every Sunday she dressed with great care and to a degree of carelessness of her appearance during the week and to her aunt's for dinner. But Aunt Lydia, as far as Kitty knew, never came to Ketchum Street.
Max Adler appeared with his violin before they had cleared the meal away. And after him Mark Quinn, bursting in noisily. He'd been promoted at the garage. Now he could afford an extra evening with the life class. He sat on David's cushion before the fire and ordered him off. Until Scheeling ran up smiling, expansive with the good fortune of a new pupil. Max played for them, one thing after another, walking up and down the length of the room while he played. Kitty, relaxed in the deep chair that was always hers, closed her eyes and her brain to everything but the thin, sweet, lifting tones. On his cushion David dropped his cheek against his hands, where they clasped his knees, and watched Kitty. Mark Quinn, his back to the others, stared into the fire. Emil Schelling beat his fingers noiselessly against the arm of his chair, his face illuminated by some inner ecstasy. A great contentment hung over them; time stood still - yesterday and the day to come were nothing.
The evening was like other evenings. After the music they argued. David with young Mark, headedly Dorcas with both of them. Emil Schelling grumbled and grunted and Max Adler denounced all their ideas. Kitty let their voices tide over and around her, while her thoughts went off on a much-traveled course of their own. Another day without Gar. That it had come and gone and that she had lived through it gave her a dull amazement, as if she saw before her a girl who was neither Kitty Brandon, for whom life had been so joyously simple, or Kitty Frew, a girl who could go on eating, sleeping, talking, laughing, taking down tweed ensembles and hanging them back again, unfolding and folding sweaters and blouses, saying briskly over and over: "Can I help you, Madam?" and come back here to count what she had gained in self-respect. To-night she shrank from that, other girl who could go on all that was tired and disheartened and lonely in her cried out against that self-respect, she didn't want it! She wanted Gar, Gar! The sudden unbearable longing for him brought hot prickling tears to her eyes so that she had to shut them tight and hold them so.
But after a little she opened them to meet David's kind, concerned glance. He gave her a quick smile and she felt steadied, as if a hand had been put on her.
When they were all gone, when Dorcas had put out the lamps and spread the fire and said good-night, Kitty went on to the little room that was hers. It was not much of a room for it was bare and furnished only with a pine bureau and small iron bed and a table and a chair and its wall-paper was faded and a little dingy but it was hers, for the total of three dollars a week.
Before she undressed she sat down at the table and entered the day's expenses in a small memorandum book. Breakfast, twenty-five cents, lunch, thirty cents, stockings, a dollar and a quarter. She contemplated the figures she entered. Unless some unexpected expense came up she could save eight dollars this week. She'd saved ten the week before. When the amount reached fifty dollars she would put it in the bank.
She put the book in her bureau drawer. She laid out a fresh blouse for the next morning, hung away her suit. Undressed, she wound her alarm clock, switched off her light and opened her window wide to the cool darkness of the night.
She turned her back on the darkness as it filled her room. She closed her eyes resolutely. Sleep she must have for the strain of the next day. She picked a safe thread of thought and followed it. Those tweed things simply must be sold - another week or so and no one would want them!
Mrs. Frew's day began early with a prescribed system of exercises. After this she ate her breakfast which Cora brought to her room. She ate leisurely, heartily. When Cora carried her tray away she lay on her chaise-longue and read for an hour, the morning paper, a magazine, perhaps a book of new fiction. After that, for another hour, she submitted herself to Cora's clever fingers and Cora's cleverly directed flattery, finding both stimulating. At eleven o'clock she received Pound to go over with him the orders for the day.
But on the morning following Kitty's flight from the house, Pound came to her door a full half-hour before she expected to see him. Pound was so obviously disturbed that Mrs. Frew dismissed Cora at once.
"Well, Pound?"
"It's Mrs. Gar, madam. She's gone."
Mrs. Frew's expression did not alter though Pound, if he had not been so completely held in his distress, might have heard a quick indrawing of her breath.
"What do you mean, Pound?"
"She went last night. She went alone. Mr. Garfield had gone out. I think he went out to dinner, likely. And she went out just after him. She took her bag, madam. I called a taxi for her. She seemed well, she seemed happy. If I may be so bold, I'd say Mrs. Gar hasn't been happy all the time. She acted like she had something on her mind. I worried about her going like that. I thought maybe I ought to tell some one. But Mr. Gar isn't in his room."
(Copyright, Jane Abbott)
Gar's excited plans for recovering Kitty come in conflict with his mother's intents tomorrow.
The oldest assembly in the world is thought to be the Welsh bardic congress, the Eisteddfod.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor

New York—(AP)—Wall Street was still depressed today by the house of representatives' approval of a stiff tax on stock transfers, but only scattered selling appeared in the share market.

The first day of the new ruling on loaning stocks to shorts had little effect on the market. The list advanced a point or two here and there in the morning, then slowly settled back.

Interest remained centered on Washington, and shares of some companies manufacturing products subject to proposed special losses were under pressure, notably the motor. But the list as a whole held up well, and trading was sluggish.

Public utilities were again under pressure. North American and Standard Gas dropped a couple of points to new lows, Eastman and Coca Cola each slumped more than 3 points, presumably reflecting the proposed tax on beverages and cameras. American Telephone, however, held up well. It rose 2 points in an early upturn, then gave up most of its gain, but held above last night's close. U. S. Steel rose 1 1/2, then reacted. Allied Chemical lost a couple of points. In the rails, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific dipped a point to new lows. Auburn dropped 6 points, after yesterday's loss of 11. Franchises carried General Motors, Studebaker, Nash and Hudson to new bottom levels, as well as General Electric, Dupont and Kennecott.

Banking and brokerage quarters were inclined to the opinion that it would take something unusual in the way of good news to help the market very much while the federal tax uncertainty still hangs over it. But important financial quarters continued to urge that the budget must be balanced at all costs. U. S. Treasury estimates indicating that the house bill is still rather far short of meeting the requirements found considerable support in Wall Street. For instance, brokers estimate that the tax on stock transfers, based on the recent volume of trading, would produce little more than $300,000,000 of revenue, rather than the $750,000,000 claimed for it.

Stocks brokers were mostly inclined to look for a protracted period of quiet markets. There was much talk of closing up of branch office, consolidating wire systems and effecting other economies. Some also expressed the opinion that extending the income taxes to dividends would divert investment buying from stocks to tax exempt bonds.

While Wall Street was feeling depressed over so many things, there was little in the days business and trade news to brighten the outlook, although the weekly mercantile reviews said that the warmer weather had quickened retail movement of spring merchandise, and some quarters were optimistic over the prospects of the intensive automobile sales campaigns which are now starting.

FORD CO. OF BRITAIN OMMITS 1931 DIVIDEND

New York—(AP)—The Ford Motor Co., Ltd., of Great Britain, which heads the European Ford enterprises, has omitted its annual dividend for 1931, it was learned today. A dividend of 10 per cent was ordered for 1930.

This action follows omissions by several other European affiliated companies, including those of Germany, Holland, Belgium, Sweden and Denmark. Ford of Canada omitted its dividend some time ago. Ford of France, however, is still on a dividend basis.

Public participation has been permitted only in the securities of the foreign Ford companies, Ford Motor Co. of the United States being privately held by the Ford family.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

New York—(AP)—March transactions in stocks on the New York stock exchange running heavily below those of the same month a year ago proved a convenient medium to brokers for argument that the framers of the proposed house tax on stock transactions grossly exaggerated its income producing possibilities.

Only 11,000 Fresh and 6,000 Stale Hogs in Chicago Yards

Chicago—(AP)—Hog prices bounced back another 10-20c on an active opening market which saw more buying energy displayed than on any previous session of the week. Only 11,000 fresh and 6,000 stale hogs were in the yards, and packers claimed 4,000 out of the day's run on through billing. Shippers and small-er killers took hogs within the first hour at $15.00-15.50, that looked 10-20c higher than Thursday's average levels, and selected lights were held at the week's peak figures.

Twelve markets received $71,400 hogs this week, a shrinkage of 29,000 from the previous week, all of which was accounted for in the local yards. Shipping orders were highest in many years, but better demand from this quarter was in sight.

Only 1,500 cattle were checked in to the city today and 100 more billings directed to slaughter plants. Considerable interest was manifested by out-of-town buyers in the few loads of fed steers suitable for eastern shipment.

Packers were in receipts of 5,300 lambs on direct consignment, leaving barely 4,500 on sale in the sheep shed. This gave them an edge which they have sought all week. Choice lambs were held at a firm price against demands for concessions.

WHEAT PRICES IN SLUMP ON GRAIN MARKET

Selling Ascribed to Houses With Eastern Connections Blamed

BY JOHN F. BROGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago—(AP)—Selling ascribed largely to houses with eastern connections carried all grains downward today, with corn reaching a new low price record for the season.

Declines of cereals came about in the face of reports of steadiness of the market. Word came that the sales of wheat export business had been of substantial volume was also ignored.

Monthly unofficial domestic crop reports, although construed as decidedly bullish, proved to be about as generally expected, estimates of 1932 winter wheat production averaging 550,000,000 bushels, compared with 644,000,000 a year ago and a five year average of 551,000,000. The average of estimates on probable abundance of wheat was 8.5 per cent.

Conditioning authority said the crop condition was low in the heavy producing areas southwest and west, especially western Kansas and Nebraska, as well as northwest Oklahoma, and that the crop as a whole would be under normal.

Indicated domestic spring acreage as given by another specialist was an increase of 43 per cent over last year's harvested acreage, compared with 49 per cent increase shown by official reports of intentions to plant. This would mean 19,934,000 acres, against 20,835,000 reported intentions and 13,940,000 harvested in 1931. Corn and oats were steadied by wheat firmness.

Grain Notes

Chicago—(AP)—Foreign support came into the market for large amounts of No. 2 hard winter wheat yesterday and sales in all positions were estimated at 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 bushels, mainly domestic grain with only a scattered business in Manitoba. This was the first time in many weeks when the seaboard reports indicated that the sales of American grain exceeded those of Manitoba. There were intimations of business in Canadian rye and barley but no figures were given.

At no time yesterday did the corn market show a disposition to rally and the finish was at the bottom. Selling was mainly of a local character and in sympathy with wheat, although there was only a limited shipping demand from the east. News from Argentina concerning the crop there had no effect either in Chicago or abroad.

Official confirmation of damage by dust storms and the recent severe freeze were received from parts of Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, which produces the bulk of the surplus winter wheat of the country, yesterday, and there were also numerous private returns indicating more or less deterioration. However, the news proved ineffective and sentiment in the wheat market became distinctly pessimistic.

WET PLANKS BY BOTH PARTIES NOT UNLIKELY

No One Denies Marked Popular Trend Toward Prohibition Opponents

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington — The politicians do not know yet what sort of prohibition plank they will write into the Republican and Democratic platform this year, but it is now obvious that the planks will differ from those of 1928.

The compelling factors and the signs of change have become so many and so strong as to be virtually unmistakable. All that bothers the boys is how far they dare deviate from the old formula of promising "law enforcement."

The Republicans, in 1928, after quoting both Washington and Lincoln as to the necessity of sticking by the Constitution, said:

"The people, through the method provided by the Constitution, have written the eighteenth amendment into the Constitution. The Republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the Constitution."

Meaningless Planks

The Democrats, after panning the Republicans for non-enforcement, said: "This convention pledges the party and its nominees to an honest effort to enforce the eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the Constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

Such planks were supposed to satisfy everybody; even wet aspirants for office were willing to promise attempted enforcement "while it is still a law."

But the planks didn't mean a thing except that neither party dared declare itself for or against prohibition as a national policy. At Smith ran as a wet and Hoover ran as a dry. That didn't mean so much, either, because the religious and prosperity issues smothered the wet-dry phase.

Changes Induced by Fear

For that matter, neither party is going to declare for or against prohibition in 1932. The probable change in the planks of both will be induced not by courage but by fear. There is a good possibility that the new planks will call for a referendum or recommitment, which the dries would regard as a flop to the wets.

But politicians are so expert at devising straddles that phraseologies are likely to be vague and bizarre. Afterward, the platform themselves are likely to be forgotten while everyone compares the records of the two candidates and listens eagerly for each word which will indicate how wet the Democratic candidate is going to be and how wet or dry Mr. Hoover will be.

The Wet Trend

Nevertheless, there is great significance in the virtual certainty that both platforms will make some kind of a bow to the wets. In an election year no politician is deaf to popular sentiment if he can measure it. And no one denies any more that there has been a marked popular trend toward the wet side.

The dries have various ways of belittling it, but they admit it just the same. And the politicians are taking it very seriously.

A few months ago many, if not most, Democrats were thinking that the party's best course was to nominate its inevitable wet candidate and avoid any wet plank. Leaders in the dry states urged that and other leaders, outside the Smith-Raskob-

Shouse group, were willing to play along.

But the sentiment for a moist plank has grown and, although there is bound to be a fight over it at Chicago, the party now seems destined to write a plank which will not have the approval of Bishop Cannon or F. Scott McBride.

G. O. P. May Be Wet

Advocacy of a referendum plank by Republican leaders very close to Hoover has become so strong and so open as to indicate that the president himself will be willing to run for reelection on such a platform.

Such fellows as Secretary of War Hurley and Vice Chairman Williams of the national committee are not given to shooting off their mouths unguardedly. Hoover will control the convention and can defeat the wet movement in the party if he tries, although not without a struggle.

His attitude remains concealed, but the belief grows that his concern over holding such vitally essential states as New York, Ohio, Illinois, New Jersey and Massachusetts will discourage him from acting in the face of urgent advice from the men whose judgment he trusts the most.

WARN AGAINST USE OF GRAVEL HIGHWAYS

Green Bay—(AP)—Warning against the use by motorists of gravel highways in the 10 counties of Division No. 3, Wisconsin Highway commission was issued by division officials Thursday as road conditions became the worst in years, due to continued mild weather. Many highways in the northern part of the state are impassable and are in bad condition the report stated.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

SUICIDE CAUSES TURMOIL

Cecil Cass didn't amount to much, but when he was detected in an affair with his employer's wife, and went home and cut his throat, he started a chain of events that set his little town in the north of England very much aflutter.

His widow, you see, owned the sumptuous Red House, which three or four other people wanted rather badly; and it was filled with antique furniture which they wanted even more. So, when she put the whole business up for auction, after her husband's suicide, the town got the thrill of its life.

All of this is described in a novel, "Red Room," by Geoffrey Dennis; and if you read that gentleman's "Mary Lee" or "The End of the World" you will probably lose very little time in buying it.

Mr. Dennis evidently has a low opinion of the people who live in small English towns. He has put into this book about as choice a collection of malicious gossip, pompous hypocrites, swindlers, liars, and all-round rogues as any one book could hold; and he describes them with a skill and a painstaking accuracy that brings them to life perfectly.

The plot of his story is simple. He merely tells of the scramble, on the part of Cecil Cass' fellow towns people, for his earthly effects; but in the telling he injects much wise comment on human beings, worldly hopes, and life in general, and makes this short novel a first rate book.

He could probably be called an old-fashioned novelist. His books have no staccato nervousness; they are leisurely and brooding, in the best Victorian tradition. All of them that I have seen are very much worth reading.

"Red Room" is published by Simon and Schuster, and costs $2.

CATALONIA ASKS SPAIN FOR RIGHT TO GOVERN TRADE

Francisco Macia, Province President, Presents Formal Request

Barcelona—(AP)—Francisco Macia, president of the Catalonian general assembly, wants the central Spanish government to grant Catalonians a federal state "capable of legislating towards its own self-support and endowed with the right to strengthen its ties of maritime trade with the Americas."

Discussing the Catalonian statute which is coming before the national congress he said:

"All we ask is the privilege of meeting our own peculiar problems in our own way."

"Separatism is no part of our program. Since the establishment of the republic we have been content to stay within Spain."

"But we have a labor problem which is peculiarly ours. Our magnificent port here is Spain's chief connection with Spanish America, and we who have helped to build it up feel we should have the right to deal with the labor troubles that today threaten our maritime industry with paralysis."

"Granted the right to suggest special tariff arrangements with South America, we believe we could stimulate an interchange of South American raw materials for greater amounts of our conserves and our Catalonian textiles."

Robert Bruce, Scottish king, was a leper.
